The Economics of Urban Property Markets Paschalis Arvanitidis, 2014-08-13 This book examines the relationship between the property market and urban economy The stimulus for this work was provided by the seemingly ever accelerating process of urban economic change and the noticeable failure of existing studies to adequately explore the pivotal role that the property market plays in this process Drawing on institutional economics the central argument of the book is that the property market as an institution is a mediator through which urban economic potential can be realised and served In developing this argument the book provides a critical realist ontological framework that advances understanding of the institutional structure of the economy and the complex interrelation between the institutional environment and human agency as well as a holistic theoretical framework of urban economic change where appropriate emphasis is placed on the specific mechanisms processes and dynamics through which the built environment is provided Arvanitidis also explores an institutional conceptualisation of property market efficiency defined in terms of the ability of the market institution to adapt its structure and to provide outcomes that the economy requires To inform empirical research on the developed concepts the book also offers a generic analytical approach specifying appropriate research methods and techniques for investigation along with a specific research design providing an operational framework that translates developed theory into empirical practice The book's primary contribution therefore lies in its delineation of a holistic research programme to conceptualise the property market as an institution and to explore its role within the urban economy
