Century Or Multi-polar Century? David Dollar, 2007 The rise of Asia is something of a myth During 1990 2005 China accounted for 28 percent of global growth measured at purchasing power parity PPP India accounted for 9 percent The rest of developing Asia with nearly a billion people accounted for only 7 percent the same as Latin America Hence there is no general success of Asian developing economies China has grown better than its developing neighbors because it started its reform with a better base of human capital has been more open to foreign trade and investment and created good investment climates in coastal cities China's success changes the equation going forward its wages are now two to three times higher than in the populous Asian countries Bangladesh India Indonesia Pakistan and Vietnam and China will become an ever larger importer of natural resource and labor intensive products Developing countries need to become more open and improve their investment climates to benefit from these opportunities China itself faces new challenges that could hamper its further development unsustainable trade imbalance with the United States energy and water scarcity and unsustainable use of natural resources and growing inequality and social tension To address the first two of these challenges good cooperation between China and the United States is essential The author concludes that we are more likely to be facing a multi polar century than an Asian century

Bijukumar, 2006 In the 1990s an academic interest aroused from certain quarters to locate the Congress Party in the context of the three trends in Indian politics like Mandal Mandir and Market This study focuses on the policies and strategies of the Congress in relation to its emphasis on the role of the developmental state and its transition towards market oriented development in the 1990s The Congress Party which developed an intrinsic relationship between the developmental state and market for its mobilization strength and domination in Indian politics over a period of time was at the receiving end of the crisis Since the market oriented economic reforms attacked the developmental state it contributed to the de institutionalization of the party By shifting the developmental strategy from the state oriented to a market oriented one great harm has been done to the Congress Party and its legitimacy over Indian politics During the second generation reforms under the BJP led NDA government the Congress Party underwent a process of introspection and reiteration Then it realized that the policies of socialism and social justice which were anathema for it during the economic reforms under the Rao regime have the potentiality to mobilize the alienated social groups and thereby reinvent its space in Indian politics The
