Purchasers can usually download a free scanned copy of the original book without typos from the publisher. Not indexed. Not illustrated. 1900 edition. Excerpt CHAPTER XLII THE DEVIL'S DEN The day came the armies awoke and standing up looked at each other. They were all there or soon would be one hundred and sixty thousand men face to face ninety thousand for the North seventy thousand for the South. The sun slow and majestic rose above the hills its light in sheaves of red and yellow fell over the two armies. The brilliant rays lingered in the crannies of the rocks and gilded the bodies of the dead. The night dews dried up the vapours were gone and the air felt pure and fresh. There was Gettysburg looking from our lines like the peaceful country town it had always been before yesterday with its trim houses and the red gold of the young sun shining on dome and cupola. The two armies gazed at each other curiously and without hostility. The fierceness the bitterness the hatred that marked this war in common with other wars was not theirs. Such emotions were for the people behind them their own if they had felt them had long since disappeared in the shock of battle. The soldiers on the opposite hill were enemies veterans like themselves worthy of respect it was not for them to malign men who might soon prove themselves their conquerors. Shaftoe and I stood side by side. Neither had slept in that night between battles but I did not feel the need of rest I had forgotten such things in the deep satisfaction that followed the rescue of Elinor. We rubbed the vapours from our eyes and turned our faces to the west where stood the Army of Northern Virginia glittering in the sunlight. A bird alighted on a bush near us and unafraid of armies began to pour out a stream of song. Shaftoe looked at him as he sung full throated upon his bough and repeated aloud O for a beaker The Guns of Shiloh Joseph Alexander Altsheler,2020-06-29 Dick Mason caught in the press of a beaten army fell back slowly with his comrades toward a ford of Bull Run The first great battle of the Civil War had been fought and lost Lost after it had been won Young as he was Dick knew that fortune had been with the North until the very closing hour He did not yet know how it had been done He did not know how the Northern charges had broken in vain on the ranks of Stonewall Jackson s men He did not know how the fresh Southern troops from the Valley of Virginia had hurled themselves so fiercely on the Union flank But he did know that his army had been defeated and was retreating on the capital Cannon still thundered to right and left and now and then showers of bursting shell sprayed over the heads of the tired and gloomy soldiers Dick thoughtful and scholarly was in the depths of a bitterness and despair reached by few of those around him The Union the Republic had appealed to him as the most glorious of experiments He could not bear to see it broken up for any cause whatever It had been founded with too much blood and suffering and labor to be dissolved in a day on a Virginia battlefield The Great Western Campaign Elizabeth Chapin-Pinotti,2014-12-01 A Jake Chapin Civil War Journey Journey Two It was right after Jake Chapin s twelfth birthday when his grandpa gave him a fabulous gift the ability to travel through time and fight the great wars with the great leaders Press this medallion to your lips three times Grandpa said handing Jake a golden cross and you will be transported to the battles that brought our country freedom and held it together Wow Jake said turning it over and over in his hand You be transported through time and you ll take on the life of a brave soldier It sounds cool and all but I have to ask why Because we have to remember Grandpa said thoughtfully We have to remember so we don t forget How can we forget when it s all written down We do have history books Jake said matter of factly It isn t the same You have to live it to feel it and you have to feel it to understand it Give it a try Grandpa said with a twinkle in his eye And Jake did He put the medallion to his lips three times and found himself a Union soldier defeated at the end of the Battle of Bull Run what lay ahead the western campaign The Northern Army has just be handed a great defeat at Bull Run and is headed back to Washington DC How will the North answer this defeat Follow our hero Jake Chapin into the Western campaign to find out The Civil War Novels Joseph A. The Guns of Shiloh: a Story of the Great Western Campaign Joseph Altsheler, 2017-05-18 The Guns of Shiloh: A Story of the Great Western Campaign. Dick Mason, caught in the press of a beaten army, fell back slowly with his comrades toward a ford of Bull Run. The first great battle of the Civil War had been fought and lost. Lost after it had been won. Young as he was, Dick knew that fortune had been with the North until the very closing hour. He did not yet know how it had been done. He did not know how the Northern charges had broken in vain on the ranks of Stonewall Jackson's men. He did not know how the fresh Southern troops from the Valley of Virginia had hurled themselves so fiercely on the Union flank But he did know that his army had been defeated and was retreating on the capital The Guns of Shiloh A Story of the Great Western Campaign has a beautiful glossy cover and a blank page for the dedication Military Reminiscences of the Civil War, Volume 1; April 1861-November 1863 Jacob D. appealed to him as the most glorious of experiments He could not bear to see it broken up for any cause whatever It had been founded with too much blood and suffering and labor to be dissolved in a day on a Virginia battlefield But the army that had almost grasped victory was retreating and the camp followers the spectators who had come out to see an easy triumph and some of the raw recruits were running A youth near Dick cried that the rebels fifty thousand strong with a hundred guns were hot upon their heels A short powerful man with a voice like the roar of thunder bade him hush or he would feel a rifle barrel across his back Dick had noticed this man a sergeant named Whitley who had shown singular courage and coolness throughout the battle and he crowded closer to him for companionship The man observed the action and looked at him with blue eyes that twinkled out of a face almost black with the sun Don t take it so hard my boy he said This battle s lost but there are others that won t be Most of the men were raw but they did some mighty good fightin while the regulars an the cavalry are coverin the retreat Beauregard s army is not goin to sweep us off the face of the earth His words brought cheer to Dick but it lasted only a moment He was to see many dark days but this perhaps was the darkest of his life His heart beat painfully and his face was a brown mask of mingled dust sweat and burned gunpowder The thunder of the Southern cannon behind them filled him with humiliation Every bone in him ached after such fierce exertion and his eyes were dim with the flare of cannon and rifles and the rolling clouds of dust He was scarcely conscious that the thick and powerful sergeant had moved up by his side and had put a helping hand under his arm
