Familial Cancer And Prevention Molecular Epidemiology A New Strategy Toward Cancer Control:

Familial Cancer and Prevention Joji Utsunomiya, John J. Mulvihill, Walter Weber, 1999-04-27 A New Strategy Toward Cancer Control Still in its infancy the familial hereditary approach to cancer control is proving to be one of the most potent strategies in the war on cancer Over the past few years the human genome project has generated an abundance of valuable information on the genetic origins of a range of cancers Tests now exist for several hereditary tumor promoting genetic mutations including those found in BRCA genes associated with breast cancer as well as mutations of HNPCC genes which have been linked to colon cancers and many more are anticipated in the near future Armed with the information yielded by these tests physicians have already saved countless lives through preventative counseling early detection and more highly focused intervention strategies Inspired by the proceedings of the UICC 1997 Symposium on Familial Cancer and Prevention held in Kobe Japan this volume provides clinicians and researchers with a detailed review of the latest developments at the front lines of the familial cancer prevention movement In a series of edited contributions leading researchers and clinicians from around the globe summarize their experiences and analyze current and emerging trends in Information gathering and history taking Risk assessment Genetic testing for colorectal endocrine breast and other familial cancers Diagnosis prognosis and management of an array of familial cancers Genetic counseling for familial cancers Up to date authoritative and comprehensive Familial Cancer and Prevention is an important working resource for clinicians cancer researchers and epidemiologists

Chemoprevention of Cancer H.-J. Senn, Alberto Costa, Craig Jordan, 2012-12-06 Pharmacologic interventions to prevent the evolution of human cancers are still in its infancy although a good number of mostly controlled clinical studies have been performed in the past two decades However regarding the partially stagnating therapeutic results of major epithelial cancer types such as breast lung colon and ENT cancer types the problem of interference with the evolution of disease at a preclinical level is an intriguing one and the field seems to develop into one of the fastest growing domains of modern oncology This process is facilitated by the developments of molecular oncogenetics and the growing existence of family cancer units allowing to better identify and inform respective high risk groups thus enabling researchers and clinicians to more realistically target their chemopreventive efforts to the true populations at risk On this changing background the newly formed International Society of Cancer Chemoprevention ISCaC together with the Swiss Cancer League and the Interdisciplinary Oncology Center of St Gallen Switzerland organized an international Symposium in September 1997 inviting basic researchers epidemiologists and clinical oncologists of related disciplines to discuss pertinent issues of experimental and clinical chemo and bio prevention in a scientific workshop

This reflects the fact that Genetic Epidemiology of Cancer Henry T. Lynch, Takeshi Hirayama, 1989-06-30 This multi authored book provides a unique accounting of the cancer problem from the standpoint of those primary genetic factors which may be interacting with myriad environmental exposures in cancer etiology It provides a comprehensive coverage of cancer of all anatomical sites in conjunction with a genetic environmental thrust It includes a survey chapter dealing with the role of primary genetic factors in cancer of differing anatomic sites and a similar comprehensive survey chapter tracing the history of epidemiology with focus upon multiple anatomic sites including classical epidemiologic cancer models such as cigarette smoking asbestos vinyl chloride and uranium exposure Chapters are devoted to tumor biomarkers and their applicability to cancer of multiple anatomic sites Clinical correlation will involve surveillance management programs and focus on high risk groups such as those involving primary genetic or environmental factors and or their interaction The development of registries involving families with differing hereditary cancer syndromes are considered Also many chapters are devoted to environmental protective measures as well as the need for more responsibility for coverage of patients at inordinately high risk for cancer by third party carriers Other chapters address segregation and linkage analysis oncogenes cytogenetics and other biomarkers This book will be of interest to general clinicians oncologists surgeons geneticists and carcinogenesis investigators

Cumulated Index to the Books, 1999 Forthcoming Books Rose Arny, 2000 Cancer Epidemiology and Prevention David Schottenfeld, Joseph F. Fraumeni, 2006-08-24 Drawing widely from international sources the new edition of this reference book on cancer causes incidence mortality and survival patterns also includes chapters on social class obesity physical activity and chemoprevention plus other related topics in the field Encyclopedia of Cancer Manfred Schwab, 2011-10-14 The merging of different basic and clinical science disciplines towards the common goal of fighting against cancer has long ago called for the establishment of a comprehensive reference source both as a tool to close the language gap between clinical and basic science investigators and as a platform of information for students and informed laymen alike The Encyclopedia of Cancer provides rapid access to focused information on all topics of cancer research for clinicians research scientists and advanced students Given the overwhelming success of the Second Edition which appeared in 2009 and fast recent development in the different fields of cancer research it has been decided to publish a third fully revised and expanded edition following the principal concept of the first edition that has proven so successful Recent developments are seeing a dynamic progress in basic and clinical cancer science with translational research increasingly becoming a new paradigm in cancer research In particular new approaches to both Personalized Cancer Medicine and Targeted Therapies have made promising progress While the Second Edition featured scholarly contributions from approximately 1 000 scientists clinicians in four Volumes the Third Edition includes 1 300 contributors in 7 Volumes with an A Z format of approx 7000 entries It provides definitions of common acronyms and short definitions of related terms and processes in the form of keyword entries In addition there are detailed essays which provide comprehensive information on syndromes genes and molecules and processes and methods Each essay is well structured with extensive cross referencing between all entries In the Third Edition topical Essays present a comprehensive picture of major cancers such as Breast Cancer Colorectal Cancer Prostate Cancer Ovarian Cancer Renal Cancer Lung Cancer and Hematological Malignancies Leukemias and Lymphomas For each of these cancers different authoritative Essays are included that cover topics ranging from Pathology to Clinical Oncology and Targeted Therapies This new feature should meet the expectance that a wide community has towards a major cancer reference works The Encyclopedia of Cancer will be accessible both in print and online and this information source should be of value to both the clinical and basic scientific community as well as to the public
