MURRAY BOWEN

The family provides the context for understanding how individuals function in relationship to others and how they behave. An individual's dysfunctional behavior grows out of the interactional unit of the family and out of larger systems as well.

THERAPEUTIC GOALS

1. Reduce chronic anxiety by facilitating awareness of how the emotional system functions and increasing levels of differentiation, where the focus is on making changes for the self rather than on trying to change others.
2. To help family members gain awareness of patterns of relationships that are not working well and to create new ways of interacting.
3. To identify how a client's problematic behavior may serve a function or purpose for the family.
4. To understand how dysfunctional patterns can be handed down across generations.
5. To recognize how family rules can affect each family member.
6. To understand how past family of origin experiences continue to have an impact on individuals.
