Lawson, Dolf van Veen, 2015-12-14 This book focuses on special organizational configurations for schools in diverse parts of the world Some of these new organizational and institutional designs are called multi service schools others are called extended service schools and still others are called community learning centers While these schools have different names and notable different characteristics they belong in the same category because of a common feature in their design they connect schools with once separate community programs and services Chief among the prototypes for these new organizational and institutional designs are the ones featured in the book's title Some are called multi service schools to indicate that they selectively provide some new programs and services Others are called extended service schools to indicate that they serve young people beyond the regular school day seeking influence and control over out of school time while enabling alternative teaching learning strategies and providing services other than typical pupil support services Still others are called community learning centers a name that showcases the educational functions and priorities of schools and announcing priorities for adult learning and development Community schools still called in some places full service community schools serves as a prototype that increasingly positions schools as multi purpose multi component anchor

Restructuring Family Policies Maureen Baker, 2006-01-01 Recent years have seen significant changes in the social policies of many liberal welfare states this is especially true of social programs for families with children Increasingly governments are making family policy trade offs reducing support for some families but improving it for others Why are such trade offs occurring and how do governments differ in their approach to family social policy This study addresses these questions by examining the political demographic and socio economic factors influencing the restructuring of family related programs in OECD countries Adopting a feminist political economy approach Maureen Baker shows that while some governments encourage their citizens to see children as future resources and promote strong support for reproductive health programs child welfare services women s refugees subsidized childcare and pay equity others make these claims while simultaneously reducing family incomes through the deregulation of labour markets and restrictions on income support Ultimately Baker demonstrates that nation states with the best outcomes for families offer a variety of social supports which are increasingly important as global markets reduce economic security for some families while improving the financial situation of others This study also explores strategies employed by states to incorporate or resist international pressures and the reasons why some states tenaciously defend their family policy traditions while others restructure according to international guidelines Drawing from nation based research cross national studies and international data bases Restructuring Family Policies successfully integrates mainstream academic debates about restructuring welfare states with feminist research findings and current policy concerns Teaching International Content Rosemary J. Globalization, Social Justice, and the Helping Professions

William Roth, Katharine Briar-Lawson, 2011-04-28 This landmark book brings together the reality of globalization and the imperative for social justice for helping professionals and students. Helping professions such as social work, counseling and community building in non-profit agencies, NGOs and government and the people and needs they serve can no longer be understood outside a global framework. While the very notion of helping professions entails a social justice perspective, the relationship between the effects of globalization and the requirements of social justice have been missing from the literature, education and practice of these fields. This book provides an understanding of the economic and social dimensions of globalization, how globalization increases the interdependence of nations, the particular risks and opportunities it presents and how some aspects of globalization can exacerbate oppression and marginalization. There are particular explorations of the challenges globalization presents in Africa and South America and a consideration of the special needs of children and families in the global context. This is a necessary volume. Its distinguished contributors have various perspectives on globalization but all write to inform and assist the work of those whose vocation is to help others.
