Family Homelessness:

Family Homelessness Karleen Jackson, 2021-12-24 First published in 2000 This book examines the multiple factors which contribute to family homelessness and uses quantitative and qualitative analyses to identify those factors which represent the major supports and barriers to homeless exit and housing stability Results show that while family homelessness is not caused by a single issue but a combination of issues including alcohol substance abuse untreated mental illness domestic violence family configuration lack of community or social supports and or lack of affordable housing options community and social supports provide the single most significant impact on the ability of families to exit homelessness and maintain stable housing Quantitative data suggests that investing in community social supports for homeless families could facilitate their exit from homelessness and increase housing stability for families at risk while reducing those supports might increase homelessness Qualitative data indicates that supportive relationships are instrumental to understanding that while homelessness is a terrible experience those who experience homelessness are not terrible people Furthermore recognizing that a loss of housing does not necessarily mean the loss of one's symbolic representation of home could assist families in viewing homelessness as a transformational learning experience rather than a traumatic failure

Anne McDonald Culp, 2013-06-25 Current statistics on child abuse neglect poverty and hunger shock the conscience doubly so as societal structures set up to assist families are failing them More than ever the responsibility of the helping professions extends from aiding individuals and families to securing social justice for the larger community With this duty in clear sight the contributors to Child and Family Advocacy assert that advocacy is neither a dying art nor a lost cause but a vital platform for improving children s lives beyond the scope of clinical practice This uniquely practical reference builds an ethical foundation that defines advocacy as a professional competency and identifies skills that clinicians and researchers can use in advocating at the local state and federal levels Models of the advocacy process coupled with first person narratives demonstrate how professionals across disciplines can lobby for change Among the topics discussed Promoting children s mental health collaboration and public understanding Health reform as a bridge to health equity Preventing child maltreatment early intervention and public education Changing juvenile justice practice and policy A multi level framework

Homelessness in America Robert Hartmann McNamara, 2008-08-30 Homelessness is one of the most compelling social problems in the United States Dating from the early years in Colonial America to the current problems relating to homeless women and children homelessness has been the topic of discussion of scholars social activists and policy makers Many types of social problems are linked to homelessness including poverty substance abuse foster care and crime As a result unpacking the issues has proven to be a challenge for anyone interested in this topic Homelessness in America offers an assessment of what is known about each segment of the homeless population which contrary to conventional belief is comprised of a wide variety of faces from many backgrounds It explains linkages to other social issues and provides a balanced overview of homelessness in light of the varying perspectives on the topic While much of what has been written about homelessness has come from the academic perspective agendas often interfere with an accurate understanding of the problem Clearly there is a place for other types of perspectives including those that view homelessness through political and legal lenses These groups have provided us with a robust body of information within which we may better understand the questions relating to homelessness McNamara has brought together the voices of these groups in order to reveal the numerous political economic and social constraints that beset current attempts to solve homelessness In addition the commonly held belief that homelessness is a result of laziness or a poor work ethic is turned on its head to reveal that homelessness is truly a

Educating Homeless Children Rebecca Newman, 2019-01-22 Newman's ethnographic study considers the ways in which the family and school environments of eleven homeless school children affected their school performance. Homelessness is revealed to be multi-faceted, serving simultaneously as a cause, result and potentiator of their families' problems. A variety of initiatives in the realms of policy, research and practice are suggested for addressing the problems of these youngsters, as well as the problems of the many other extremely poor school children. Supporting Families Experiencing Homelessness Mary E. Haskett, Staci Perlman, Beryl Ann Cowan, 2013-11-08 Homelessness among families with children in the U.S. is rising rapidly due to the economic downturn. Supporting Homeless Families: Current Practices and Future Directions aims to raise the standard of services provided to families without homes through practices that are strengths-based and culturally competent. This book provides a contextual overview of family homelessness. An ecological and developmental framework for understanding the implications of homelessness from infancy through adulthood are presented with reference to existing research. The book also addresses innovative designs for providing collaboration between and among diverse services that interface with families experiencing homelessness. In doing so, the importance of providing families with culturally competent services that support them during episodes of homelessness, as well as the period of re-housing, are addressed. Examples of empirically proven interventions and best practices are showcased, and roadblocks to success and sustainability are discussed. The Homeless Children and Youth Act of 2011 United States. Homeless Children Panos Vostanis,Stuart Cumella,1999-01-01 An increasing number of families are becoming homeless often as a result of domestic violence which leaves women and their school age children without homes This multidisciplinary volume is the first to look at the variety of problems encountered by this group and to propose strategies for managing those problems The contributors to this book provide evidence that homeless children often have more acute problems and needs than other children as a result of the insecurity of their situation they may experience physical health problems and developmental delay They are also at high risk of emotional and behavioural difficulties such as sleep disturbance eating problems aggression over activity anxiety depression and self harm At the same time due to their unstable situation they are less able to access support from the health education and social services Homeless Children defines the specific problems and needs of homeless children and draws up practical guidelines for staff and agencies on recognising and dealing with those problems It then looks at policy and service development for homeless families in education health and social care and concludes that conventional methods of provision have to be adapted to meet the specific needs of this vulnerable group Reauthorization of the McKinney-Vento Homeless Assistance Act United States.
