A Decade of Family Literacy Nancy Padak, Connie Sapin, Dianna Baycich, 2002

Family Literacy Matters Linda Phillips, Ruth Hayden, Stephen P. Norris, 2006 By following families over three years the authors have convincingly shown the power of a family literacy program to change lives At the broadest level their conclusions will come as little surprise to anyone in the literacy field the children with the greatest need benefited the most and parents with at least high school education could help their children the most The real richness of this volume however lies in the depth of detail The parents involved in the program told the researchers they were generally paying more attention to printed material reading more often and wanted to learn how to improve their literacy They became more sophisticated in gauging their children s literacy skills and more sure of their own abilities to help those children Bringing Literacy Home

KaiLonnie Dunsmore,Douglas Fisher,2010 True family literacy is not just a matter of establishing parent child book nights and encouraging parents to read aloud to their children Effective family literacy programs recognize and validate the important ways teachers families and community members learn from one another Family literacy also relies on bringing students home literacy routines into the classroom then back home again This important book sheds light on family literacy practices that consider and celebrate students complex and diverse home lives Cultural considerations are key and several chapters deal with the need to recognize respect and capitalize on home contexts for literacy in order to engage students families and communities In these pages you will Read about successful family literacy programs Gain ideas for incorporating home culture and literacy practices into school settings to better engage students Learn how to effectively communicate literacy practices and goals to parents This volume differs from other books on family literacy in that the contributors themselves reflect the demographic diversity in today s schools So in addition to presenting their research and classroom experiences they give rich personal accounts of their own interactions with students teachers and families And they raise questions about power and access calling for true learning partnerships Book jacket Handbook of Family Literacy

Barbara Hanna Wasik,2012 The Handbook of Family Literacy 2e provides the most comprehensive up to date coverage of family literacy of any available book It documents the need for literacy education for children and parents describes early literacy and math development within the home analyses interventions in home and center settings and examines the issues faced by fathers and women with low literacy skills Minnesota Family Literacy and School Readiness Study Edith

Gozali-Lee,Dan Mueller,2010 This report presents findings from the two year Minnesota Family Literacy and School Readiness study It provides information on the impacts of participating Family Literacy programs and on the first and second cohorts of children and their families enrolled in these programs The Minnesota Early Learning Foundation provided the Amherst H Wilder Foundation Wilder Research a two year grant through its Innovation Projects to conduct the study The goals of the study are to answer three questions 1 What gains in developmental skills important for school readiness do children make at different levels of participation in Family Literacy 2 What level of Family Literacy program dosage do children need to substantially benefit from the program with regard to preparation for kindergarten 3 How is parents involvement in their children s learning affected by level of participation in Family Literacy The first section of the findings begins with a profile of the Family Literacy programs followed by a profile of the families including children and parents within these families and family literacy dosage including amount of participation total hours and attendance rate The second section describes the child assessment results parents involvement in their child s learning and parents literacy outcomes The relationships between demographic characteristics and participation levels and child and parent outcomes are examined Before presenting the findings a description of the study methods is provided Appended are 1 Profile of Family Literacy programs 2 Profile of children and parents 3 Family Literacy dosage and 4 Participant progress Contains 13 figures and 1 footnote This study was funded by and prepared for The Minnesota Early Learning Foundation

The Home-School Connection Flora V. Rodriguez-Brown, 2009-06-02 In this unique contribution to the literature on parental involvement in culturally and linguistically diverse communities Flora Rodriguez Brown offers a critique of family literacy programs that lack a clear design for literacy activities relevant to community goals offering an alternative model that is grounded within an abiding respect for the parents role as the child s first and ultimately most important teacher Robert D Milk University of Texas San Antonio The Project FLAME program used as context for this book is a comprehensive family literacy model supported by a strong sociocultural framework based on current research on cultural ways of learning and theories of multiliteracies and discourse The model highlights the relevance of parents knowledge cultural ways and discourses in sharing literacy knowledge with their children A pressing need exists for models and programs that effectively serve the educational needs of the steadily increasing numbers of culturally and linguistically diverse students in U S public schools today Addressing issues related to development implementation and effectiveness of a program model that fulfills this need this book is an essential resource for educators community workers and researchers interested in the relevance of the home school connection in relation to children s school success

Family Literacy in the Elementary School National Center for Family Literacy (U.S.), 2002

Home and School Come Together Elizabeth M. Pichardo, 2012 This study focuses on the pilot year of a family literacy program in a suburban school district as it becomes a third space for ELL and non ELL families and the teaching staff who participate in the program A third space can develop when participants from the privileged space of the school and from the marginalized space of the home are brought together in one place in this case a school based family literacy program so that new knowledge and understanding emerges In this qualitative study evidence of the presence of a third space was documented through observations survey results and reflections from staff members and the families The results indicated that a third space between the home and the school was created The findings encourage teachers schools and districts to continue looking for opportunities to bring the home and school spaces together in order to foster student success
