S. Jayne, Jordan Chamberlin, Rui Benfica, 2020-04-28 Contemporary discussions of Africa's recent growth have largely interpreted such growth in terms of structural transformation based mainly on national and sectoral level data However the micro level processes driving this transformation are still unclear and remain the subject of debate This collection provides a micro economic foundation for understanding the particular growth processes at work within the region s rural areas and in so doing provides important insights for policy action The book provides valuable household and farm level evidence about the drivers of rural labour productivity improvements in access to markets investment in food value chains and indeed the role of rural economic growth in Africa s ongoing rural transformation processes Some of the features of Africa s ongoing rural transformation are similar to those of agricultural transformation as experienced in Asia and elsewhere However other features of Africa s rural transformation are unique and pose important challenges for development policy and planning Together the studies compiled in this volume provide an updated evidence based and policy relevant understanding of where African countries are in their developmental trajectories and the region s prospects for achieving inclusive forms of development over the next several decades This book was originally published as a special issue of the Journal of Development Studies

The Famine of 1896-1897 in Bengal Malabika Chakrabarti, 2004 This book is a focussed treatment of a famine both as an event and a process It is a close up of a peasant economy in the throes of a crisis which temporarily eroded the value system determining the normal pattern of entitlements An investigation of the socio economic ecological and cultural determinants of the famine helps evolve a coherent framework The emphasis is on the distinctive problems of the various economic regions most notably the tribal belts Chakrabarti applies Amartya Sen s theory of exchange entitlements to a nineteenth century famine situation in Bengal and finds that a market based entitlement failure precipitating severe famine conditions even without receiving any impulse from food production has little relevance here Though the book underlines the predicament of the subalterns the famine is not seen from the viewpoint of any specific group or community The focus is rather on the phenomenon of famine in its totality on the agony and trauma of a peasant society thrown out of gear in an abnormal situation and the crisis of identities that ensued

Sustainability, growth, and poverty alleviation Stephen A. Vosti, Thomas Anthony Reardon, 2007-01-01 Developing countries are under pressure to produce more food for their growing populations conserve natural resources and reduce poverty In the short term however these goals may compete with one another This book focuses on the interactions between agricultural growth and environment and between environment and poverty The chapters analyze and illustrate these interactions with case study evidence from the developing world in general and from specific agroclimatic zones in Africa Asia and Latin America The contributors also discuss what these links mean for development policies agricultural technologies and social and economic institutions With a clearer picture of how these goals interact policymakers and researchers can design strategies for working more effectively to meet them

Public Policy and Agricultural Development Ha-Joon Chang, 2012-06-12 This book critically re-examines the currently dominant paradigm of agricultural development policy from historical and comparative perspectives Examining the experiences of 11 developed countries in their earlier stages of development and the experiences of 10 developing and transition economies in the last half a century the book offers an in depth discussion on a range of public policies for agriculture some currently in use and others forgotten in the mist of history After presenting the overarching theoretical framework and a synthesis of findings over the 21 countries examined the book presents six detailed case studies of agricultural policy in the last half a century in two Latin American countries Chile and Mexico two African countries Ethiopia and Ghana and two Asian countries India and Vietnam Each chapter examines a wide range of policies including land policy land tenure reform and land quality improvement knowledge policy research extension education and information credit policy specialized banks and agricultural credit co operatives physical inputs policy irrigation transport electricity and divisible inputs such as fertilizers seeds and farm machinery policies intended to increase farm income stability price stabilization measures insurances and trade protection and policies intended to improve agricultural marketing and processing Through its historical and comparative approaches the book frees our policy imagination by showing that the range of policies and institutions that have produced positive outcomes for agricultural development has been much wider than any particular ideological position be it the pre 1980s statist one or the pro market NCW would admit It also shows that the willingness to experiment with new policies and institutions and the willingness to learn from other countries successes and improve upon their solutions were important in all agricultural success stories Groundwater Markets in Pakistan centers around an intense debate among donors policymakers development practitioners and academics on the efficacy of aid in eradicating poverty while promoting human development It seeks to fill the gap in present literature by presenting stories of better spending through implementing Sustainable Development Goals and addressing Agenda 2030 via indigenization of global development goals with initiatives at local and national levels The book adopts an innovative approach to dealing with aid effectiveness by highlighting the relevance of better spending rather than excessive spending It does so with real life examples of interventions made in the Global South to realize the vision of thinking globally and acting locally These case studies speak to the significance of communities role in shouldering responsibility for planning financing operating and maintaining local developmental initiatives The examples also demonstrate how aid serves its purpose when used as an investment in communities and enterprising individuals in order to realize the strategic impact of giving and build a local receiving mechanism for indigenizing and achieving global development goals The book references cases of better spending by governments philanthropists and civil society organizations CSOs from across Asia Africa and Latin America on a range of issues and will thus be of interest to development practitioners policymakers donors philanthropists civil society organizations and academics and students of international development studies
