American Architects and the Mechanics of Fame Roxanne Kuter Williamson, 2014-03-07 Why does one talented individual win lasting recognition in a particular field while another equally talented person does not While there are many possible reasons one obvious answer is that something more than talent is requisite to produce fame The something more in the field of architecture asserts Roxanne Williamson is the association with a famous architect at the moment he or she first receives major publicity or designs the building for which he or she will eventually be celebrated In this study of more than six hundred American architects who have achieved a place in architectural histories Williamson finds that only a small minority do not fit the right person right time pattern She traces the apprenticeship connection in case studies of Louis Sullivan Frank Lloyd Wright Henry Hobson Richardson the firm of McKim Mead White Latrobe and his descendants the Bulfinch and Renwick Lines the European immigrant masters and Louis Kahn Although she acknowledges and discusses the importance of family connections the right schools self promotion scholarships design competition awards and promotion by important journals Williamson maintains that the apprenticeship connection is the single most important predictor of architectural fame She offers the intriguing hypothesis that what is transferred in the relationship is not a particular style or approach but rather the courage and self confidence to be true to one's own vision Perhaps she says this is the case in all the arts American Architects and the Mechanics of Fame is sure to provoke thought and comment in architecture and other creative fields American Architects and Texts Juan Pablo Bonta,1996 In this volume the author analyzes 400 architectural books and articles published over the past 150 years to reveal changing societal preferences in architecture and to measure the reputations of individual architects the text includes a ranked list of the 100 most famous architects American Architects and Their Books, 1840-1915 Kenneth Hafertepe,James F. O'Gorman,2007 Since the Renaissance architects have been authors and architecture has been the subject of publications Architectural forms and theories are spread not just by buildings but by the distribution of images and descriptions fed through the printing press The study of an architect's library is an essential avenue to understanding that architect's intentions and judging his or her achievements In this well illustrated volume a chronological sequel to American Architects and Their Books to 1848 twelve distinguished historians of architecture discuss from various points of view the books that inspired architects both famous and not so famous and the books the architects themselves produced They examine the multifaceted relationship of nineteenth and early twentieth century architects to print culture the literary works that architects collected used argued over wrote illustrated designed printed were inspired by cribbed from educated clients with advertised their services through designed libraries for or just plain enjoyed The result is a volume that presents the intersection of the history of architecture the history of ideas and the history of the book Changes in print culture during this period had a significant impact on the architectural profession as revealed in these well informed scholarly essays In addition to the editors contributors include Jennifer A Amundson Edward R Bosley Ted Cavanagh Elspeth Cowell Elaine Harrington Michael J Lewis Anne E Mallek Daniel D Reiff Earle G Shettleworth Jr and Chris Szczesny Adams Among the architects discussed are A J Downing Charles Sumner Greene James Sims Samuel Sloan John Calvin Stevens Thomas U Walter and Frank Lloyd Wright American Architect ,1908 The American Architect and the Architectural Review ,1922 The American Architect from the Colonial Era to the Present Cecil D.
