Library,1920 Writers in Paris David Burke,2010-05 No city has attracted so much literary talent launched so many illustrious careers or produced such a wealth of enduring literature as Paris From the 15th century through the 20th poets novelists and playwrights famed for both their work an An Analysis of Zora Heale Hurston's Characteristics of Negro Expression Mercedes Aguirre,Benjamin Lempert,2017-07-05 A critical analysis of African American novelist and anthropologist Zora Neale Hurston 1934 essay Characteristics of Negro Expression A crushing evaluation of the many racial prejudices of 1930s America including a common presumption that African American art was unoriginal merely poorly copying white culture Hurston s approach and premises may seem in many ways dated to modern readers but the essay still shows an incisive mind carefully evaluating arguments and cutting them down to size African American art of the time did not Hurston influentially argued play by the same rules as white art so it could not meaningfully be discussed by white notions of aesthetic value Where white European tradition views art as something fixed Hurston saw African American art works as a distinctive form of mimicry reshaping and altering the original object until it became something new and novel In this way she contended African American creative expression is a process that generates its own form of originality turning borrowed material into something original and unique By carefully evaluating the relevance of previous arguments Hurston showed African American artistic expression in an entirely new light The Value of History Paul F Frank Beisbier,2019-07-09 The work that is about to be surveyed by the reader represents decades of painstaking work to provide him or her with the most positive and freshest perspective with respect to what the discipline of history teaches him or her to improve the quality of not only his or her daily life but also those of all other whom he or she comes into contact with This task is accomplished when he or she becomes aware of the fact that the greatest possible good can only be achieved through the promotion of the adequate satisfaction of the greatest number of needs of the maximum number of people within the context of its being mutually beneficial to all parties involved Furthermore the reader of this volume gains the widest perspective on how the above assertion is valid for and has a positive impact on all fields of human endeavor individual human lives and human institutions since the content of historical subject matter consists of nothing less than the past and present record of all the events and developments of the above entities Thus since everything that people learn is through past and present experiences history teaches them everything and nothing can be perceived outside the framework of its subject matter To present a graphic example to the reader of this volume to clearly illustrate the truth and validity of the above points the author has used the comparison and contrast of the values beliefs and cultures of two very different societies in variant times and places to do so The retrograde valuing of power and wealth placed on them by a small elite in European medieval society resulting in limited social mobility in a primarily agrarian society is in marked contrast to the emphasis on limited individual freedom within the framework of the rule of law as espoused by modern America Within the latter framework it was possible to develop a modern industrial and postindustrial community to provide individual social advancement through educational and employment opportunities as well as through the availability of quality health care. Finally through all that has been stated above it is worthwhile for society at large as well as the academic community to peruse through the contents of this volume in order to accomplish the above objectives.
