Romantic Generations Lene Østermark-Johansen,2003 Unlike the first two volumes of ANGLES on the English Speaking World this special issue does not originate in a set of conference papers The idea of compiling a collection of essays on Romanticism emerged from the unusually strong concentration on Romantic studies among the graduate students of the English Department a couple of years ago This volume places their work in the context of distinguished international scholars of greater seniority scholars who have become academic contacts through conferences and assessment committees and whose contributions I am very pleased to be able to include alongside the works of local contributors The Romantic generations of the title of this volume thus strike a number of different chords generations of scholars in Romantic studies conventional divisions of Romantic poets into first second and possibly third generations the self generative aspect of Romanticism the awareness of poetic reputation and the image and afterlife of the poet The collection spans just over a hundred years from the 1780s to the 1890s and while not in any way attempting to define Romanticism or raise issues of periodization the volume allows for the continued existence of Romantic features right until the end of the nineteenth century Poetry looms large in this issue of ANGLES apart from Ian Duncan s essay on Hume Scott and the Rise of Fiction all the other essays are in some way concerned with the Romantic poet and his poetry The Romantic poet is thus represented as a collector and editor of ballads as a political radical and printmaker as other to himself essentially ignorant of the process of poetic composition as a rival and collaborator with other poets or as a poet long dead the subject of successive generations of poetic lament The boundaries between poetry and the visual arts is explored in a couple of the essays indeed the rivalry between portraiture and literature pervades no less than three of the contributions and no matter whether the subject of inquiry is the image of the poet or the image of the poet's mother the Romantic poet displays a high degree of self-consciousness with respect to both literary and visual media Romantic generations generate both selves and others in poetry and portraiture The Book of Sacramental Basics Tad W. Guzie, 1981 Explores the underlying meaning of Christian sacraments and how they function

American Political Movies James Combs, 2013-12-17 Essays here explore the relationship between politics and explicitly political feature films from the beginning of the movie industry to World War I and for each decade through to the 1980s The included filmography is particularly useful Originally published in 1990 the method of inquiry put forward in this text is nonetheless extendable to the decades following its publication

The Aesthetics of Senescence Andrea Charise, 2020-01-01 Investigates how nineteenth century British literature grappled with a new understanding of aging as both an individual and collective experience The Aesthetics of Senescence investigates how chronological age has come to possess far reaching ideological ethical and aesthetic implications both in the past and present Andrea Charise argues that authors of the nineteenth century used the imaginative resources of literature to engage with an unprecedented climate of crisis associated with growing old Marshalling a great variety of canonical authors including William Godwin Mary Shelley George Eliot Anthony Trollope and George Gissing as well as less familiar writings by George Henry Lewes Christoph Wilhelm Hufeland Agnes Strickland and Max Nordau Charise demonstrates why the imaginative capacity of writing became an interdisciplinary crucible for testing what it meant to grow old at a time of profound cultural upheaval Charise's grounding in medicine political history literature and genre offers a fresh original thoroughly interdisciplinary analysis of nineteenth century aging and age theory as well as new insights into the rise of the novel a genre usually thought of as affiliated almost entirely with the young or middle aged Charise's brilliantly argued clearly written book is an important intervention in nineteenth century British literature age studies and medical humanities It brings these areas of inquiry together in what seems a seamless way as if they have always traveled together or ought to have Through an investigation of what she calls the aesthetics of embodiment that shaped nineteenth century visions of aging Charise has given us an original and groundbreaking study of literary historical anthropological and philosophical texts Devoney Looser author of The Making of Jane Austen betray themselves in human experience Progress in science or religion no less than in morals and art is a dramatic episode in man's career a welcome variation in his habit and state of mind although this variation may often regard or propitiate things external adjustment to which may be important for his welfare The importance of these external things as well as their existence he can establish only by the function and utility which a recognition of them may have in his life The entire history of progress is a moral drama a tale man might unfold in a great autobiography could his myriad heads and countless scintillas of consciousness conspire like the seventy Alexandrian sages in a single version of the truth committed to each for interpretation What themes would prevail in such an examination of heart In what order and with what emphasis would they be recounted In which of its adventures would the human race reviewing its whole experience acknowledge a progress and a gain To answer these questions as they may be answered speculatively and provisionally by an individual is the purpose of the following work
