The Psychology of Early Childhood C.W. Valentine,2015-06-05 Originally published in 1942 this title attempted to trace from their very earliest appearances after birth all aspects of mental development in childhood up to the age of about 4 or 5 It is based largely on the author s almost daily observations of his own five children over a period of some twenty years supplemented by numerous tests and experiments The first purpose of this book was to advance our knowledge of the psychology of childhood The importance of such knowledge had become increasingly recognised Even if not all is completely determined in the first 4 5 years there was little doubt by this time that these first years are of profound significance for future development and the better understanding and training of the young child may be at the root of many of our educational and social problems

Fears, Phobias, and Rituals Isaac Meyer Marks,1987 This book brings together information on fear and anxiety disorders from many disciplines including ethology genetics biochemistry physiology pharmacology psychology and psychiatry

H. Bamber,1979 The Feel of Algorithms Minna Ruckenstein,2023-05-23 This book explores the cultural shift in society that promotes and relies on affectively charged technology relations Bringing together relatable first person accounts of what it means to experience algorithms emotionally alongside research developed across anthropology sociology media and communication studies and science and technology studies The Feel of Algorithms reveals how political economic processes are felt in the everyday as we learn about the digital geography of fear and the current lack of collective resources to build algorithmic systems Minna Ruckenstein builds on the notion that everyday practices are not merely subject to algorithmic logic rather people actively respond to and live with data and algorithms ranging from actual technical operations to their imagined effects The pleasures fears and frustrations come together to produce a blueprint of how such systems should be combined with human aims and efforts The narrated emotional reactions are not simply individual responses they tell a more generalizable story of structures of feeling and related attempts to live well with algorithmic systems The Feel of Algorithms demonstrates that human capacities and aims need active fostering in the algorithmic era The structures of feeling aid in recognizing troubling practices but they also call for alternatives that are currently ignored
