Families And The Gravely Ill Roles Rules And Rights Contributions In Medical Studies No 23:

Families and the Gravely Ill Richard Sherlock, C Mary Dingus, 1988-09-26 This volume joins other recently published works on the ethical and legal considerations of life sustaining treatments Sherlock and Dingus focus on medical decision making involving children and incompetent adults and the issue of how these decisions should be made Discussion begins with the various meanings of family and the psychosocial issues in family involvement The authors explore differences in decision making for the incompetent adult and for the child and consider the pros and cons of family decision making as well as alternative decision making methods They argue for an ethics committee review of selected difficult cases The use of relevant cases to depict the legal aspects involved in medical decision making for children and incompetent adults helps clarify the issues involved A valuable reference for graduate or professional collections Choice Written by a specialist in medical ethics and a practicing medical psychologist this book is a comprehensive review of the complex issues involved in family decisionmaking in medicine Although much has been written about the treatment of seriously ill patients little has been written about those involved in the complicated decisionmaking process for incompetent patients This volume therefore fills an important gap in the literature In addition to treating general issues in ethics and psychology the authors also address the realities of actual clinical decisionmaking setting their work apart from more traditional studies of medical ethics

National Library of Medicine Current Catalog National Library of Medicine (U.S.), 1991 Death and Dying John F. Szabo, 2009-11-02 While it can be traced to the 1700s the term thanatology has gained traction in recent decades to refer to the study of death Because of the breadth of the published material and the challenges of discovery in large bibliographic databases and catalogs finding and identifying monographic material on death dying grief and bereavement can be extremely challenging Although there have been several bibliographical resources published on thanatology those titles were incomplete limited in scope or leaned heavily toward one area of the field In Death and Dying An Annotated Bibliography of the Thanatological Literature John F Szabo provides more than 2 200 citations of monographs on the science and study of death and dying Among the areas this volume addresses are the psychological philosophical and attitudinal aspects coping and dealing with the burdens of caregiving and working in the helping professions instructional and educational topics for practitioners primarily health care providers cultural differences in bereavement rituals and grief mourning and loss In addition notable titles on or relating to death and dying in popular culture death themes in literature methods of death or specific ethical policy or public issues are also included when they contribute important information to subject areas on which the book focuses This book will be helpful to students researchers academics caregivers health care professionals psychologists social workers and anyone with an interest in death dying bereavement or the care of the terminally ill
