Frances K. Goldscheider,Linda J. Waite,1991 Is the American family a thing of the past Almost anyone can tell a story that illustrates how dramatically things have changed in the past decades Nonmarriage childlessness and divorce are commonplace Most children leave their parents home and live for increasing periods before marriage as independent adults But there are also signs of strengths Some parents play more equal roles both financially and in coping with household tasks In this revealing new study Frances Goldscheider and Linda Waite discuss cogently the question of whether we are headed for no families or new families Adults across the nation who reached thirtysomething in the early 1980s are the primary focus of the book although broader patterns of social change are seen in the influence of their parents experiences on them and in their own children s experiences of family life The authors begin with their subjects as very young adults examining their plans for work and family and their attitudes toward women's work and family roles. As these young men and women move farther into adulthood, we learn what influences their chances of marriage, their patterns of family building and dissolving, and the division of labor in the families they form. In each case, the authors focus on the effects of exposure to different family structures in childhood and young adulthood. The authors find surprisingly that the real threats to the family are in the home itself: the new option of a home of one's own in a variety of circumstances outside of marriage; most men's noninvolvement in the home and its tasks; and the fact that knowledge of and respect for basic skills involved in making a home are not being taught to today's sons and daughters.

Family Life in Adolescence Patricia Noller, Sharon Atkin, 2014-01-01. Many parents fear the time when their beautiful happy children will become unmanageable adolescents continually engaging in risky or destructive behaviour. Unfortunately, this view of adolescents is the focus of the media, even though it relates to just a small proportion of young people. As the large amount of research we report shows, most adolescents are responsible young people who care about their families and crave the support of their parents. It is also true, however, as much research indicates that the quality of the relationship parents have with their adolescents is crucial to the wellbeing of those young people. We discuss the need for parents to set reasonable limits on their adolescents and to expect appropriate behavior. We also show, on the basis of research, that children who have experienced positive caring relationships with their parents are more likely than other adolescents to behave responsibly. In other words, behavior in adolescence does not come out of nowhere but builds on earlier experiences in the family. Because of the large amount of research reported in this volume, we expect that it will be useful to practitioners from a range of professions that are likely to focus on adolescents: social workers, youth leaders, welfare workers, religious leaders, psychologists, and psychiatrists, and contribute to a better understanding of young people and their development and the importance of families to that development.

Journey to Adulthood Chin-Chun Yi, Ming-Chang Tsai, 2023-01-06. Young people in East Asia are increasingly experiencing a prolonged transition to adulthood. They are spending longer in school, entering the labour market later, and getting married later still. This protracted young adulthood interacts with forces of both tradition and modernization as social and economic changes generate profound effects on the transition from school to work, on family formation, on personal relationships, and on subjective well-being. Journey to Adulthood explores the special characteristics of young adulthood in East Asia. It uses Taiwan as an illustrative example, with comparative findings from its East Asian neighbours: Japan, Korea, and Hong Kong. It describes the particular growth context of a millennial generation and the challenges they face as they attempt to balance family formation, personal development, and entry into a market economy Edited by Chin Chun Yi and Ming Chang Tsai this collection helps us to understand the structural configurations East Asian young adults collectively represent Taking a cross cultural and comparative perspective it enables meaningful policy suggestions on family dynamics educational strategy and health and well being across the globe Dr Chin Chun Yi and Dr Ming Chang Tsai both work within the Institute of Sociology Research Center for Humanities and Social Sciences Academia Sinica Taiwan
