Elder Mistreatment Deciding Who Is At Risk:

Elder Mistreatment Tanya F. Johnson, 1991-03-30 Mistreatment of the elderly became recognized as a serious and growing problem in the late 1970s as a result of governmental investigations and research in the public and private sectors. Although in most states elder mistreatment is handled by social service agencies other professionals are also needed to broaden the identification team and help alleviate the risk to the older adults. This book is designed for human services professionals who are not necessarily adult protective services specialists but who provide direct ongoing services to elder adults. Its purpose is to offer guidelines for detecting elder mistreatment so that assistance can be given to the vulnerable older adults to preserve their particular quality of life. The book is arranged into seven chapters. The first discusses why elder serving human services professionals should become involved in mistreatment identification while chapter two focuses on the various starting points in the definition of elder mistreatment. Chapters three and four review research on risk factors in elder mistreatment and detail varieties of mistreatment measures and methods for distinguishing between them. A review of risk instruments used in adult protective services and non adult protective services settings forms the basis of chapter five and chapter six outlines a proposed risk assessment model specially designed for elder serving human service professionals. The final chapter offers some prospects for the future of elder mistreatment risk assessments. The work concludes with a set of four appendices covering contact persons in lead agencies, report receiving authorities within jurisdictions, health status risk assessment and prevention strategies. This volume will be a useful tool for human services professionals, mental health care providers and social health care and legal services professionals as well as a useful addition to reference collections in public, academic and medical libraries.

Elder Mistreatment Tanya F. Johnson, 1995-11-08 In this guidebook authors from various disciplines distinguish conflicts in ethical issues among elder abuse victims, precipitators and professional care providers and propose ways to address these differences. Elder Mistreatment: Ethical Issues, Dilemmas and Decisions identifies key differences and similarities in professional ethical protocols and shows how differences may be addressed to achieve consensus in ethical decisionmaking. For some time now helping professionals involved with cases of elder abuse have recognized the need to begin a dialogue on applying ethical principles to practice. The subject of ethics while always a part of services has been difficult to articulate in practice because its roots come from principles of belief rather than objective absolute criteria. For this reason professionals have erred on the side of practice methods rather than the deeper issues of values protocols for clients and professionals. Elder Mistreatment raises the question of how to identify ethical values and their starting points among all parties in the elder abuse situation, determine whether dilemmas may arise with competing values and initiate moves toward consensus. Professionals from the fields of medicine, social work, law, religion and ethics review three cases of mistreatment, identify the ethical values, issues and dilemmas as they relate to both the client/patient and their particular profession. In this way the reader can compare the similarities and differences among professional starting points The final chapter in this book written by a medical ethicist describes how members from different professions working as a multidisciplinary team might be able to integrate differing perceptions of the dilemmas into greater consensus in the process of ethical decisionmaking in cases of elder mistreatment Throughout the case studies and chapters these topics are covered in depth communicative ethics autonomy beneficence non maleficence justice community based multidisciplinary care legal competence clinical competence Readers at all levels in the following fields will benefit from this guidebook social workers physicians nurses allied health professionals psychologists therapists psychiatrists clergy lawyers paralegals and ethicists

Handbook of Psychological Approaches with Violent Offenders Vincent B. Van Hasselt, Michel Hersen, 2013-11-11 The past quarter century has witnessed a dramatic upsurge of violent crime in the United States and abroad In this country the rise in violent criminal activity has been consistently documented in such published accounts as the Uniform Crime Reports and the Statistical Handbook on Violence in America published by the FBI and the Violence Research Group respectively Further social scientists particularly those working in the fields of sociology and psychology have provided a convergence of findings attesting to the magnitude of one of today's most significant social problems domestic violence e g spouse child and elder abuse Such efforts have served as the impetus for heightened clinical and investigative activity in the area of violent behavior. Indeed a wide range of mental health experts such as psychologists, psychiatrists, social workers, counselors and rehabilitation specialists have endeavored to focus on strategies and issues in research and treatment for violent individuals and their victims. The purpose of this book is to provide a comprehensive and timely examination of current psychological approaches with violent criminal offenders. Despite the fact that we continue to have much to learn about perpetrators of violent acts, in recent years an increasingly large body of empirical data have been adduced about this years issue. However these data generally have appeared in disparate journals and books. That being the case it is our belief that such a handbook now is warranted.
