Future Voices from West London Simon Harwin, 2000-01-01 The British National Bibliography Arthur James Wells, 2004 Youth Futures Jennifer Gidley, Sohail Inayatullah, 2002-08-30 How do young people see the future Are they optimistic or pessimistic Do their views vary from culture to culture Are young people actively engaged in creating their desired futures or are they passively receiving the future What effect has globalization on youth culture How is the future taught in schools These and many other questions are dealt with in this volume of comparative empirical research from around the world on how youth see the future Generally youth are considered immature irresponsible toward the future cliquish impressionistic and dangerous toward self and others They are considered as a mass market two billion strong the passive recipients of globalization Most recently in OECD nations youth have become fodder for political speeches they are the problem that reflects both the failure of the welfare state dependence on the state the failure of globalization unemployment and postmodernism loss of meaning and the crisis of the spirit In the Third World youth are seen not only as the problem but equally as the force that can topple a regime as in Yugoslavia However youth can also be seen as carriers of a new worldview a new ideology These and other views concerning youth are examined in this volume of comparative empirical research Studies from around the world provide intriguing answers to questions about how youth see the future and their future roles This book will be of particular interest to scholars students researchers and policymakers involved with youth issues and future studies Futures Beyond Dystopia Richard Slaughter, 2004 How can dystopian futures help provide the motivation to change the ways we operate day to day This book raises and tackles a number of important questions about the future and the lessons we can learn for the present Independent futures Barnes, Colin, Mercer, Geoffrey, 2006-04-28 The number of disability related support services controlled and run by disabled people themselves has increased significantly in the UK and internationally over the past forty years As a result greater user involvement in service provision and delivery is a key priority for many western Governments This book provides the first comprehensive review and analysis of these developments in the UK Drawing on evidence from a range of sources including material from the first national study of user controlled services this book provides a critical evaluation of the development and organisation of user controlled services in the UK and identifies the principal forces economic political and cultural that influence and inhibit their further development It summarises and discusses the policy implications for the future development of services and includes an up to date and comprehensive literature and research review Independent futures is essential reading for academics and students on a range of courses including health and social care social work allied health professions such as nursing occupational therapy and speech therapy social policy sociology and psychology It will also be of interest to practitioners and policy makers who need a reliable overview of current policy and critical analysis of key issues affecting future policy and practice Ceramic, Art and Civilisation Paul Greenhalgh, 2020-12-24 Full of surprises and evocative The

Spectator Passionately written Apollo An extraordinary accomplishment Edmund de Waal Monumental Times Literary Supplement An epic reshaping of ceramic art Crafts An important book The Arts Society Magazine In his major new history Paul Greenhalgh tells the story of ceramics as a story of human civilisation from the Ancient Greeks to the present day As a core craft technology pottery has underpinned domesticity business religion recreation architecture and art for millennia Indeed the history of ceramics parallels the development of human society This fascinating and very human history traces the story of ceramic art and industry from the Ancient Greeks to the Romans and the medieval world Islamic ceramic cultures and their influence on the Italian Renaissance Chinese and European porcelain production modernity and Art Nouveau the rise of the studio potter Art Deco International Style and Mid Century Modern and finally the contemporary explosion of ceramic making and the postmodern potter Interwoven in this journey through time and place is the story of the pots themselves the culture of the ceramics and their character and meaning Ceramics have had a presence in virtually every country and historical period and have worked as a commodity servicing every social class They are omnipresent a ubiquitous art Ceramic culture is a clear unique definable thing and has an internal logic that holds it together through millennia Hence ceramics is the most peculiar and extraordinary of all the arts At once cheap expensive elite plebeian high tech low tech exotic eccentric comic tragic spiritual and secular it has revealed itself to be as fluid as the mud it is made from Ceramics are the very stuff of how civilized life was and is led This then is the story of human society's most surprising core causes and effects

Imagined Futures in Science, Technology and Society Gert Verschraegen, Frédéric Vandermoere, Luc Braeckmans, Barbara Segaert, 2017-04-07

Imagining forecasting and predicting the future is an inextricable and increasingly important part of the present States organizations and individuals almost continuously have to make decisions about future actions financial investments or technological innovation without much knowledge of what will exactly happen in the future Science and technology play a crucial role in this collective attempt to make sense of the future Technological developments such as nanotechnology robotics or solar energy largely shape how we dream and think about the future while economic forecasts gene tests or climate change projections help us to make images of what may possibly occur in the future This book provides one of the first interdisciplinary assessments of how scientific and technological imaginations matter in the formation of human ecological and societal futures Rooted in different disciplines such as sociology philosophy and science and technology studies it explores how various actors such as scientists companies or states imagine the future to be and act upon that imagination Bringing together case studies from different regions around the globe including the electrification of German car infrastructure or genetically modified crops in India Imagined Futures in Science Technology and Society shows how science and technology create novel forms of imagination thereby opening horizons toward alternative futures By developing central aspects of the current debate on how scientific imagination and future making interact this timely volume provides a fresh look at the complex interrelationships between science technology and society This book will be of interest to postgraduate students interested in Science and Technology Studies History and Philosophy of Science Sociology Cultural Studies Anthropology Political Sciences Future Studies and Literary Sciences
