Capital and Inequality in Rural Papua New Guinea Bettina Beer, Tobias Schwoerer, 2022-06-28 That large scale capital drives inequality in states like Papua New Guinea is clear enough how it does so is less clear This edited collection presents studies of the local contexts of capital intensive projects in the mining oil and gas and agro industry sectors in rural and semi rural parts of Papua New Guinea it asks what is involved when large scale capital and its agents begin to become significant nodes in hitherto more local social networks Its contributors describe the processes initiated by the planned presence of extractive industries that tend to reinforce already existing inequalities or to create and socially entrench novel inequalities The studies largely focus on the beginnings of such transformations when hopes for social improvement are highest and economic inequalities still incipient They show how those hopes and the encompassing socio political transformations characteristic of this phase act to produce far reaching impacts on ways of life setting precedents for and embedding the social distribution of gains and losses The chapters address a range of settings the PNG Liquid Natural Gas pipeline newly established eucalyptus and oil palm plantations a planned copper gold mine and one in which rumours of development diffuse through a rural social network as yet unaffected by any actual or planned capital investments The analyses all demonstrate that questions around land leadership and information are central to the current and future social profile of local inequality in all its facets

Migration and Marriage Barbara Waldis, Reginald Byron, 2006 In a world in which migration and the mixing of peoples are increasing while at the same time multicultural ideology has given rise to the reassertion of putative primordial differences between peoples interesting questions are raised about the relationships between political rhetoric and social action groupness and individuality and the public and the private The rate of intermarriage is considered by sociologists the most important statistical test of the strength or weakness of structural divisions within societies What do social anthropologists have to say about heterogamy and homogamy in situations of movement and flux and what does this tell us about processes of boundary definition

Ink and Land Willem Church, 2025-08-14 Ink and Land is an ethnographic account of political and legal struggles over landownership in Papua New Guinea in which competing factions seek recognition as customary landowners of Wafi Golpu a major prospective copper gold mine Drawing on extensive archival research oral histories court documents and fifteen months of fieldwork the book examines how different groups attempt to harness resource extraction for their benefit and how in doing so they reshape their social worlds through the medium of affidavits court declarations and incorporation certificates To analyse this process the book advances the concept of antagonistic documentality a form of conflict in which parties engage in conflicting world building projects through and about documents and in doing so create an order of paper that outlasts the disputes themselves Through this detailed case study Ink and Land reveals how legal and bureaucratic battles over resource extraction in Papua New Guinea formalise factionalism consolidate elite control over new sources of wealth and redefine the nature of groups and landownership By focusing on conflict over documents as a process of social transformation the book offers fresh insights into the politics of land law and resource extraction in the contemporary Pacific

Making Sense of AIDS Leslie Butt, Richard Eves, 2008-05-31 In Melanesia rates of HIV infection are among the highest in the Pacific and increasing rapidly with grave humanitarian development and political implications There is a great need for social research on HIV AIDS in the region to provide better insights into the sensitive issues surrounding HIV transmission This collection the first book on HIV and AIDS in the Pacific region gathers together stunning and original accounts of the often surprising ways that people make sense of the AIDS epidemic in various parts of Melanesia The volume addresses substantive issues concerning AIDS and contemporary sexualities relations of power and moralities themes that provide a powerful backdrop for twenty first century understandings of the tensions between sexuality religion and politics in many parts of the world

The Markham Languages of Papua New Guinea

Susanne Holzknecht, 1989 The main aims of this work are to establish the status of the Austronesian languages of the

Markham Valley and its hinterland and of the upper Ramu Valley in Papua New Guinea in relation to other languages of the Oceanic group and to delineate their sub groupings Descriptions of the phonologies and morphosyntactic systems are provided as the basis for the comparative analysis A reconstruction of the history of these languages is attempted using the available linguistic historical social and geographical information The comparative method is used to investigate the relationships between these languages The material for the study consists of phonological morphosyntactic and lexico semantic data collected by the writer in the field Sociolinguistic cultural and oral historical information was also collected and used as supplementary evidence Chapter 1 introduces the topics for investigation and outlines the conventions used in the thesis In Chapter 2 are presented some theoretical considerations a review of previous work on Markham languages and an outline of the methodology used in data collection and analysis Chapter 3 presents the Markham language communities in their geographical and social context The social background of the societies is given in some detail because the languages and their history cannot be considered apart from this social context The main linguistic data upon which this work is based is presented in Chapter 4 Phonology and Chapter 5 Morphosyntax In Chapter 4 are brief phonological sketches of each of the

Markham languages After a discussion of previous reconstructions of Proto Oceanic and Proto Huon Gulf a reconstruction of the phonology of Proto Markham is outlined and supporting evidence for the reconstructions is given Chapter 5 consists of analyses comparisons and reconstructions of aspects of the Markham languages morphosyntax In Chapter 6 the comparisons and contrasts presented in the previous two chapters are drawn together and the evidence for the internal unity and genetic relationship of the Markham languages is given in detail Hypotheses about the sub grouping of the languages are outlined and evidence supporting these hypotheses is presented Chapter 7 concludes the study with a summary of the findings The evidence supports the proposition that the Markham languages form an internally consistent genetically related unit which is descended from Proto Oceanic through Proto Huon Gulf It consists of three groups Upper Markham Watut and Lower Markham of which the Upper Markham and Lower Markham groups are further divided into several sub groupings The history of the Markham languages is outlined and evidence supporting this scenario is provided from linguistics from oral histories cultural data and geographical sources Diversity and Universality in Causal Cognition Sieghard Beller, Andrea Bender, Michael R. Waldmann, 2017-12-12 Causality is one of the core concepts in any attempt to make sense of the world and the explanations people come up with shape their judgments emotions intentions and actions This renders causal cognition a core topic for the social as well as the cognitive sciences In the past however research has been split into diverging paradigms each pertaining to a distinct sub discipline and focusing on a specific domain thus creating a rather fragmented picture of causal cognition Furthermore most of this previous research paid only incidental attention to culture as a possibly constitutive factor leaving important questions unanswered Is causality always perceived in the same way Are causal explanations affected by the concepts to which people refer and or the language they use Is causal cognition domain specific and if so how does it differ from agency construal Is causal reasoning always based on the same cognitive mechanisms or does the cultural background of people shape how they process respective information and perhaps even their willingness to search for causal explanations in the first place By soliciting contributions that address questions like these this research topic aimed at assessing the extent to which causal cognition may vary across species cultures or individuals at various stages of their development and at integrating different perspectives across a broad range of disciplines Originating from the work of a research group funded by the Center for Interdisciplinary Research ZiF at Bielefeld University Germany the scope of this research topic was broadened by inviting additional contributions from researchers with expertise in different fields of causal cognition agency construal and or cultural impacts on cognition In order to fully exploit the potential of cognitive science we explicitly encouraged submissions from scholars from all its classic sub disciplines i e anthropology artificial intelligence linguistics neuroscience philosophy psychology as well as scholars from comparative psychology cognitive archeology economics and any other discipline interested in causal cognition We welcomed empirical findings as well as theoretical contributions with an emphasis on those factors that do or may constrain trigger or shape the way in which humans and other primates think about causal relationships and inform us about both the diversity and the universality of causal cognition A Linguistic Bibliography of the New Guinea Area Lois Carrington, 1996
