Gaining New Military Capability An Experiment In Concept Development:

Gaining New Military Capability: An Experiment in Concept Development, 1998 In the face of changing operational requirements expanding technological opportunities and ever more restricted budgets simply buying more of the same will prove an inadequate strategy for equipping the next generation of military forces But to make effective use of new technologies to perform changing military tasks the military must develop new technological and operational concepts for performing a wide range of military operations Unfortunately current practice in the U S Department of Defense DoD frequently works to limit systematic thinking about alternative approaches to challenging military tasks Ideally broad thinking about how specific missions might be accomplished should precede decisions about what kinds of platforms what classes of technologies or which military service is most appropriate for particular tasks Too often however these steps in the process of planning force modernization are reversed As a result concept development sometimes becomes more an exercise in finding a use for a given technology platform or operational method rather than in finding the right technology or platform to perform a specific function Thinking about alternative options is narrowed and competition among alternative concepts is weakened

Gaining New Military Capability J. L. Birkler, Carl Richard Neu, Glenn A. Kent, 1998 The process of modernizing U S military forces is the focus of this report Thinking about America's Defense Glenn A. Kent, 2008 Lieutenant General Glenn A Kent was a uniquely acute analyst and developer of American defense policy in the second half of the twentieth century His 33 year career in the Air Force was followed by more than 20 years as one of the leading analysts at RAND This volume is not a memoir in the normal sense but rather a summary of the dozens of national security issues in which Glenn was personally engaged over the course of his career These issues included creating the single integrated operational plan SIOP leading DoD s official assessment of strategic defenses in the 1960s developing and analyzing strategic nuclear arms control agreements helping to bring new weapon systems to life and many others Each vignette describes the analytical frameworks and where appropriate the mathematical formulas and charts that Glenn developed and applied to gain insights into the issue at hand The author also relates his roles in much of the bureaucratic pulling and hauling that occurred as issues were addressed within the government publisher s website Enemy Inside The Gates: Snipers In Support Of Military Operations In Urbanized Terrain Lt.-Colonel Jeffery E. Dearolph USMC,2014-08-15 As the world s urban areas continue to increase in size the possibility of U S forces conducting military operations in urbanized terrain also increases However the weapon systems the U S procures and employs obtain maximum effectiveness in open terrain These weapons prove less capable in urban terrain since their standoff and precision advantages suffer degradation due to buildings and the fleeting nature of enemy personnel U S weaponry also causes a large amount of collateral damage that may also result in civilian casualties which proves politically unacceptable Potential adversaries of the U S realize these limitations and present a target set that proves difficult to locate and engage The target set the enemy uses in urban terrain consists of enemy combatants mixing with non combatants enemy snipers and special purpose teams Assets the U S possesses that can engage elements of the enemy s urban target set include U S Army and Marine Corps snipers However a determination on whether more snipers will effectively defeat the target set requires consideration This monograph analyzes the contemporary operating environment to articulate the enemy s urban target set Next a review of current U S Army and Marine Corps sniping doctrine organization and training establishes the foundation for presenting the sniper s capability to defeat the urban target set In order to provide a balanced argument other possible solutions to engaging and defeating the target set receive consideration Research shows that the sniper company organized at the division level achieves the desired effect of increasing the density of sniper teams on the urban battlefield The costs associated with the sniper company prove acceptable as it requires minimal expenditure concerning personnel and equipment The division sniper company will effectively counter the enemy s urban target set without causing non combatant casualties Improving the Readiness of U.S. Forces Through Military Jointness United States. Congress. House. Committee on Armed Services. Subcommittee on Readiness,2011

Network Technologies for Networked Terrorists Bruce W. Don,2007 Understanding how terrorists conduct successful operations is critical to countering them Terrorist organizations use a wide range of network technologies as they plan and stage attacks This book explores the role that these communications and computer technologies play and the net effect of their use the purpose and manner in which the technology is used the operational actions of terrorists and possible responses of security forces The authors conclude that future network technologies modestly improve terrorist group efficiency particularly for their supporting activities but do not dramatically improve their attack operations Precluding terrorists from getting the technology they want is impractical developing direct counters is unlikely to yield high payoffs Instead exploiting the technologies and the information such technologies use to enable more direct security force operations
