Montgomery and Canadian Culture Elizabeth R. Epperly, Irene Gammel, University of Toronto Press, 1999-01-01 Contributors from a wide range of disciplines explore L M Montgomery s writing and its relation to Canadian nationalism including regionalism canon formation and Canadian American cultural relations     Pioneer Woman Elizabeth Thompson, 1991-03-01 Elizabeth Thompson develops the idea of the pioneer woman as an archetypal character firmly entrenched in Canadian fiction and the Canadian consciousness Thompson s broad definition of the concept of pioneer can be seen to reflect the history of Canadian women starting with the pioneers of settlement and continuing through the pioneers of spiritual perfection and psychological liberation Various versions of the pioneer woman have appeared in English

Canadian fiction since Traill's development of the character type Sara Jeannette Duncan's The Imperialist and Ralph Connor's The Man From Glengarry and Glengarry School Days feature pioneer women who cope not only with physical frontiers but also with those grounded in social and personal concerns. More recently Margaret Laurence used this character type in The Stone Angel, A Jest of God and The Diviners with characters who inhabit internal personal frontiers. Thompson argues that the longevity of this character type in English Canadian fiction reveals an affinity between the pioneer woman and a common conception of the role of women in Canadian society. She suggests that the role for women proposed by the early immigrants was an appropriate choice for the Canadian frontier regardless of the location and nature of that frontier.

Copeland, 2006-05-31 Woman Critiqued will make us wonder why we thought we could grasp modern Japanese literature without concerted attention to what men and women had to say about women's literary production. This remarkable collection is full of surprises even where predictable arguments are being made. Careful translations of writings by the familiar and the obscure together with thought provoking introductions and supporting apparatus make this an indispensable text for the study of modern Japanese culture and society. Norma M Field University of Chicago. Over the past thirty years translations of Japanese women's writing and biographies of women writers have enriched and expanded our understanding of modern Japanese literature. But how have women writers been received and read in Japan? To appreciate the subterfuges, strategies and choices that the modern Japanese woman writer has faced, readers must consider the criticisms leveled against her, the expectations and admonitions that have been whispered in her ear and pay attention to the way she herself has responded. What did it mean to be a woman writer in twentieth century Japan? How was she defined and how did this definition limit her artistic sphere? Woman Critiqued builds on existing scholarship by offering English language readers access to some of the more salient critiques that have been directed at women writers on the one hand and reactions to these by women writers on the other. The grouping of the essays into chapters organized by theme clarifies how the discussion in Japan has been framed by certain assumptions and how women have repeatedly tried to intervene by playing with undercutting or attempting to exceed these assumptions. Chapter introductions contextualize the translated essays historically and draw out aspects that warrant particular scrutiny or explication. Although the translators do not cover all aspects or genres identified with women's literary endeavors in the twentieth century, they provide a significant understanding of the evaluative systems under which Japanese women writers have worked. Woman Critiqued will be eagerly

Diversity and Change in Early Canadian Women's Writing Jennifer Chambers, 2009-10-02 Diversity and Change in Early Canadian Women's Writing is a collection of nine essays thematically arranged dedicated to the works of women writing between 1828 and 1914. It is for all those readers who were certain that there had to be diverse interesting socially relevant voices in early Canadian women's writing. It is equally for sceptics who will find that early Canada is not bereft of women writers or of writing of substance. When Lorraine McMullen published the collection of essays Rediscovering Our Foremothers in 1990 she considered the field in its infancy. As keen as literary historians and critics have been to assess the contributions of women to Canada's early cultural scene, this collection moves beyond listing which women were writing in early Canada and brings together a study of their journalistic and literary works. For a nation caught up in projects to enhance nation building and concerned with the development of its national literature, the essays reconnect with early literary works by women. Eighteen years after McMullen's, this collection shows the progression along the path that hers initiated. Working with theories of genre, gender, socio-politics, literature, history, and drama, the essayists make cases not only for the women writing but also for the literary voices they created to work for diversity and social change in Canada. Southwest Blue Book, 1928

Gender(ed) Identities Tricia Clasen, Holly Hassel, 2016-08-25 This volume brings together diverse cross-disciplinary scholarly voices to examine gender construction in children's and young adult literature. It complements and updates the scholarship in the field by creating a rich cohesive examination of core questions around gender and sexuality in classic and contemporary texts. By providing an expansive treatment of gender and sexuality across genres, eras, and national literature, the collection explores how readers encounter unorthodox as well as traditional notions of gender. It begins with essays exploring how children's and YA literature construct communities formed by gender, ethnicity, sexuality, and in face-to-face and virtual spaces. Section II's central focus is how gendered identities are formed, unpacking how texts for young readers ranging from Amish youth periodicals to the blockbuster Divergent series trace, reproduce, and shape gendered identity socialization. In section III, the essential literary function of translating trauma into narrative is addressed in classics like Anne of Green Gables and Pollyanna as well as more recent works. Section IV's focus on sexuality and romance encompasses fiction and nonfiction works examining how children's and young adult literature can serve as a regressive, progressive, and transgressive site for construction meaning about sex and romance. Last, Section IV offers new readings of paratextual features in literature for children from the classic tale of Cinderella to contemporary illustrated novels. The key achievement of this volume is providing an updated range of multidisciplinary and methodologically diverse analyses of critically and commercially successful texts contributing to the scholarship on children's and YA literature gender sexuality and women's studies and a range of other disciplines     The Psychology of Adolescence Fowler Dell Brooks, 1929
