Emaki, Narrative Scrolls from Japan Miyeko Murase,1983 EMAKI Miyeko Murase,1983 Emaki Miyeko Murase,1983-01-01 Storytelling in Japanese Art Masako Watanabe,2011 Presents 17 classic Japanese stories as told through 30 illustrated handscrolls ranging from the 13th to 19th centuries Mapping Courtship and Kinship in Classical Japan Doris G. Bargen,2015-08-31 Literary critiques of Murasaki Shikibu's eleventh century The Tale of Genji have often focused on the amorous adventures of its eponymous hero. In this paradigm shifting analysis of the Genji and other mid Heian literature Doris G. Bargen emphasizes the thematic importance of Japan's complex polygynous kinship system as the domain within which courtship occurs. Heian courtship conducted mainly to form secondary marriages was driven by power struggles of succession among lineages that focused on achieving the highest position possible at court. Thus interpreting courtship in light of genealogies is essential for comprehending the politics of interpersonal behavior in many of these texts. Bargen focuses on the genealogical maze the literal and figurative space through which several generations of men and women in the Genji moved. She demonstrates that courtship politics sought to control kinship by strengthening genealogical lines while secret affairs and illicit offspring produced genealogical uncertainty that could be dealt with only by reconnecting dissociated lineages or ignoring or even terminating them. The work examines in detail the literary construction of a courtship practice known as kaimami or looking through a gap in the fence in pre-Genji tales and diaries and Sei Shōnagon's famous Pillow Book. In Murasaki Shikibu's Genji courtship takes on multigenerational complexity and is often used as a political strategy to vindicate injustices, counteract sexual transgressions or resist the pressure of imperial succession. Bargen argues persuasively that a woman observed by a man was not wholly deprived of agency. She could choose how much to reveal or conceal as she peeked through shutters from behind partitions, fans and kimono sleeves or through narrow carriage windows. That mid Heian authors showed courtship in its innumerable forms as being influenced by the spatial considerations of the Heian capital and its environs and by the architectural details of the residences within which aristocratic women were sequestered adds a fascinating topographical dimension to courtship. In Mapping Courtship and Kinship in Classical Japan readers both familiar with and new to The Tale of Genji and its predecessors will be introduced to a wholly new interpretive lens through which to view these classic texts. In addition the book includes charts that trace Genji characters' lineages, maps and diagrams that plot the movements of courtiers as they make their way through the capital and beyond and color reproductions of paintings that capture the drama of courtship.

Japan Report, 1982 The Practices of Painting in Japan, 1475-1500 Quitman E. Phillips,2000 This book attempts to expand the grounds and methodology of studying Japanese art history by focusing on the conditions, procedures, events and social interplay that characterized the production of paintings in late fifteenth century Japan. Though the book's ultimate concerns are art historical, its analysis also draws heavily from the insights of sociology and social history. At its core is a fresh examination of the major primary documents of the period in an attempt to liberate the study from assumptions long embedded in the historiography of late medieval Japanese painting history Early chapters describe documents methods basic sites and conditions of painting before turning to the main contribution of the book painting considered as a body of social practices The production of painting in the late fifteenth century was profoundly social dynamically related to the circumstances of its agents Painters advisors assistants clients and others did not exert themselves simply to bring paintings into existence They sought advantages such as wealth and prestige met obligations and satisfied the demands of custom Surviving documents from the period present rich evidence of the involvement of such persons in the imperial court the Ashikaya Gozan community the great temples of Nara and the halls of local lords The author takes into account the patterns of expectation that existed at the various sites but does not construe them as static and mechanically determined Rather he shows that expectations evolved in response to changed conditions Although this study specifically addresses the last quarter of the fifteenth century it can aid future research in Japanese painting practice in other eras by serving as a model of how new interpretations can emerge from close documentary investigation
