Elizabeth Fry Laura E. Richards, 2016-03-23 Elizabeth Betsy Fry 21 May 1780 12 October 1845

ne Gurney was an English prison reformer, social reformer, and as a Quaker, a Christian philanthropist. She has sometimes been referred to as the angel of prisons. Fry was a major driving force behind new legislation to make the treatment of prisoners more humane, and she was supported in her efforts by the reigning monarch. Since 2001, she has been depicted on the Bank of England 5 note.

Elizabeth Betsy Gurney was born in Gurney Court off Magdalen Street, Norwich, Norfolk, England, into a prominent Quaker family, the Gurneys. Her childhood family home was Earlham Hall, which is now part of the University of East Anglia.

Her father, John Gurney (1749–1809), was a partner in Gurney's Bank. Her mother, Catherine, was a member of the Barclay family, who were among the founders of Barclays Bank. Her mother died when Elizabeth was twelve years old. As one of the oldest girls in the family, Elizabeth was partly responsible for the care and education of the younger children, including her brother, Joseph John Gurney, a philanthropist. One of her sisters was Louisa Gurney Hoare (1784–1836), a writer on education.

Excerpt from Elizabeth Fry: Life and Labors of the Eminent Philanthropist, Preacher, and Prison Reformer. Compiled from her Journal and other sources. My aim has been not to preserve everything she said and did, but to present a Life Portrait of Elizabeth Fry and her unique career. This can best be done by letting herself be the chief speaker, since she has spoken so admirably; next those who knew her well. Of the latter, we have many witnesses, but the principal are her two daughters, Katherine Fry and Rachel E. Cresswell. Both still living at this date, who in 1847, two years after her death, published a Memoir of the Life of Elizabeth Fry in two octavo volumes of 525 and 552 pages. This was extensively read at that time, when the name of Elizabeth Fry was in all mouths, but it necessarily contained much of transitory interest to the rapidly changing world of men, who are too busy to dwell long on what does not closely concern them. The work was not reprinted and has long been out of the market, and only to be found among those who purchased at the time of its publication. An abridgement of it was afterwards published with some additional notes and recollections by Susanna Corder, a teacher of Friends' schools, who was well acquainted with Mrs. Fry and a member of the same religious Society. This work of 667 pages is still to be obtained at Fiebig's book stores and seems to have been undertaken partly with a view to furnishing members of that Society with a Life of Elizabeth, relieved of both a portion of matter passing from public interest and of the unquakerly style in which the original Memoir was written one of the daughters Mrs Cresswell and apparently the larger writer having become a member of the Episcopal church and not conforming to the peculiarities of her mother Mrs Fry also left on record some observations looking toward greater liberty than her Society were then ready to adopt though they are now approaching the standard to which her catholic Spirit and wide experience at length brought her sympathetic mind About the Publisher Forgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books Find more at www.forgottenbooks.com This book is a reproduction of an important historical work Forgotten Books uses state of the art technology to digitally reconstruct the work preserving the original format whilst repairing imperfections present in the aged copy In rare cases an imperfection in the original such as a blemish or missing page may be replicated in our edition We do however repair the vast majority of imperfections successfully any imperfections that remain are intentionally left to preserve the state of such historical works
