Embroiderers Story Needlework From The Renaissance To The Present Day:

The Embroiderer's Story Thomasina Beck, 1995 A pattern source and history Dress Culture in Late Victorian Women's Fiction Christine Bayles Kortsch, 2016-05-13 In her immensely readable and richly documented book Christine Bayles Kortsch asks us to shift our understanding of late Victorian literary culture by examining its inextricable relationship with the material culture of dress and sewing Even as the Education Acts of 1870 1880 and 1891 extended the privilege of print literacy to greater numbers of the populace stitching samplers continued to be a way of acculturating girls in both print literacy and what Kortsch terms dress culture Kortsch explores nineteenth century women s education sewing and needlework mainstream fashion alternative dress movements working class labor in the textile industry and forms of social activism showing how dual literacy in dress and print cultures linked women writers with their readers Focusing on Victorian novels written between 1870 and 1900 Kortsch examines fiction by writers such as Olive Schreiner Ella Hepworth Dixon Margaret Oliphant Sarah Grand and Gertrude Dix with attention to influential predecessors like Elizabeth Gaskell Charlotte Bront and George Eliot Periodicals with their juxtaposition of journalism fiction and articles on dress and sewing are particularly fertile sites for exploring the close linkages between print and dress cultures Informed by her examinations of costume collections in British and American museums Kortsch s book broadens our view of New Woman fiction and its relationship both to dress culture and to contemporary women s fiction

Queering the Subversive Stitch Joseph McBrinn, 2021-04-08 The history of men s needlework has long been considered a taboo subject This is the first book ever published to document and critically interrogate a range of needlework made by men It reveals that since medieval times men have threaded their own needles stitched and knitted woven lace handmade clothes as well as other kinds of textiles and generally delighted in the pleasures and possibilities offered by all sorts of needlework Only since the dawn of the modern age in the eighteenth and the nineteenth centuries did needlework become closely aligned with new ideologies of the feminine Since then men s needlework has been read not just as feminising but as queer In this groundbreaking study Joseph McBrinn argues that needlework by male artists as well as anonymous tailors sailors soldiers convalescents paupers prisoners hobbyists and a multitude of other men and boys deserves to be looked at again Drawing on a wealth of examples of men s needlework as well as visual representations of the male needleworker in museum collections from artist s papers and archives in forgotten magazines and specialist publications popular novels and children s literature and even in the history of photography film and television he surveys and analyses many of the instances in which needlemen have contested resisted and subverted the constrictive ideals of modern masculinity This audacious original carefully researched and often amusing study demonstrates the significance of needlework by men in understanding their feelings agency identity and history

Stitching the World: Embroidered Maps and Women's Geographical Education Judith A. Tyner,2016-12-05 From the late eighteenth century until about 1840 schoolgirls in the British Isles and the United States created embroidered map samplers and even silk globes Hundreds of British maps were made and although American examples are more rare they form a significant collection of artefacts Descriptions of these samplers stated that they were designed to teach needlework and geography The focus of this book is not on stitches and techniques used in drafting the maps but rather why they were developed how they diffused from the British Isles to the United States and why they were made for such a brief time The events of the late eighteenth and early nineteenth centuries stimulated an explosion of interest in geography The American and French Revolutions the wars between France and England the War of 1812 Captain Cook s voyages and the explorations of Lewis and Clark made the study of places exciting and important Geography was the first science taught to girls in school

This period also coincided with major changes in educational theories and practices especially for girls and this book uses needlework maps and globes to chart a broader discussion of women's geographic education. In this light map samplers and embroidered globes represent a transition in women's education from accomplishments in the eighteenth century to challenging geographic education and conventional map drawing in schools and academies of the second half of the nineteenth century. There has been little serious study of these maps by cartographers and moreover historians of cartography have largely neglected the role of women in mapping. Children's maps have not been studied although they might have much to offer about geographical teaching and perceptions of a period and map samplers have been dismissed because they are the work of schoolgirls. Needlework historians likewise have not done in-depth studies of map samplers until recently. Stitching the World is an interdisciplinary work drawing on cartography, needlework and material culture. This book for the first time provides a critical analysis of these artefacts showing that they offer significant insights into both eighteenth and nineteenth century geographic thought and cartography in the USA and the UK and into the development of female education.

David M. Shapard's Annotated Northanger Abbey brings Austen's world into richer focus.

Women and Their Gardens Catherine Horwood, 2012-04 From the golden age in English history to today's gardeners and designers this volume recognizes women's contributions to gardening in Britain and around the world spanning more than four centuries. Despite growing vegetables for their kitchens tending herbs for their medicine cupboards and teaching other women about the craft before agricultural schools officially existed women have been mere footnotes in the horticultural annals for specimens collected abroad. These pioneers influence on the style of gardens in the present day is illustrated here in a style both accessible and scholarly. Presenting a rare bouquet this collection shares the stories of more than 200 women who have been involved with garden design plant collecting flower arranging botanical art garden writing and education.
