Flora of the State of Washington Charles V. Piper, 2015-06-15 Excerpt from Flora of the State of Washington Vol 11 The following account of the flora of the State of Washington by Prof C V Piper is based on his study of the plants of that State during a period of twenty years. This work was carried on in chance hours of leisure and in occasional summer vacations. During most of the college year 1899-1900, however, Professor Piper was at the Gray Herbarium looking up critical material and examining the specimens of older collectors, especially those upon which publications had been based. Considerable time was devoted also to other large Herbaria, particularly those of the United States National Museum, of the Academy of Natural Sciences of Philadelphia, and of the New York Botanical Garden. The private herbaria of Prof L F Henderson, of Mr Thomas Howell, and of Mr W N Suksdorf were likewise freely consulted. Most of the types of the new species published by Professor Piper in the present work and in earlier papers are in the United States National Herbarium, and a large part of the whole material on which this flora is based is also represented there. In the course of his work, Professor Piper examined specimens of nearly all the collections made within the confines of the State of Washington so far as these are to be found in American herbaria. Thus it was possible to ascertain the identity of nearly all the species which had been accredited to the State through erroneous determination. Unfortunately, several of the specimens upon which the names in published lists were based are not now to be found in the herbaria in which they might be expected. This is true particularly of Cooper's plants, and in less degree of those of the Wilkes Expedition, so that the identity of such plants can only be surmised. In publications on the collections of Menzies, Douglas, Scouler, and Tolmie, there are many plant names that can be definitely rectified only by examining the original specimens. It is quite certain also that the current interpretation of a number of species based on these early collections is erroneous. Their correction will require an examination of the types which are in European herbaria. With few exceptions, no species has been admitted into this flora unless its author has actually studied Washington specimens. In the course of the preparation of this work, Professor Piper became indebted to many botanists for assistance.
