Leading Evidence Informed Value Improvement in Healthcare John Ovretveit, 2009-10-04 Improvement in healthcare has not delivered on its promise outside of a few examples This is because it has not sufficiently been linked to resources thus argues this book Value improvement focuses on changes which raise quality and lower costs This is effective because it unites professions patients payers and purchasers in a common cause and uses tested solutions and methods Value improvement works with the realities of resources and politics and with knowledge of what is effective in different situations The purpose of healthcare is to reduce avoidable suffering This includes the suffering unknowingly caused by a service when we do not use an effective treatment or make an error These events are also waste and they have a financial cost The good news is that we now have more knowledge about these adverse or suboptimal events and about effective solutions We now know these organisational events are not inevitable and we can prevent them We are also beginning to discover that many if prevented will reduce the costs of healthcare Improving diagnosis and prescribing reduces both avoidable suffering and higher costs as do hygiene strategies and changes to ensure professionals pass on correct information about patients to the next caregiver We are entering an exciting time in healthcare equivalent to earlier periods of medical discoveries The discoveries of improvement and implementation science in organisations are now being linked to the discoveries about the costs and savings of quality and safety changes This knowledge is beginning to be used by clinicians management and purchasers and alliances are forming to bring in a new era of quality and safety improvement The aim of this book is to show how ordinary leaders can combine improvement knowledge with resource knowledge to reduce suffering and the costs of healthcare It does not assume good information technology or special resources to help improvement It recognises that our colleagues may not want to spend time on this work and often do not do what they are asked to do It recognises some improvements are not value improvements they do not add value for patients and reduce costs Where improvements do both we may find that the financing system penalises the provider for making the change or we cannot convert the saved resources into lower costs or higher income Thus it is also about both short A term and long A term value improvements It is about how managers and other leaders find and awaken energy in themselves to make improvement and bring this energy to life in the people they work with How we channel this energy in effective ways and enable others to make improvement It is about tomorrow and next week and about where the real innovation creativity and inspiration happens in the routine but changing short A staffed semiA chaos of most health services We are not powerless and can choose not to accept failings of the health system as being outside of our influence A few others have shown what can be achieved when we join in a common cause and use these effective methods The challenge is for us is to do this in our local service and to connect our services Transforming Public Health Practice Bernard J. Visualising Health Care Practice Improvement Rick Iedema,Jessica Mesman,Katherine Carroll,2022-02-22 Why is it that in spite of all the health policy reforms clinical practice innovations increasing intersectoral interdependencies and new medical and information technologies so little has changed in the way we research and evaluate health care Don t these changes cry out for new ways of being studied and appraised And don t our approaches to clinical practice innovation cry out for being reinvented too Surely we cannot continue to wheel out research and evaluation paradigms improvement approaches and methods that were designed for 20th century problems and 20th century health care and assume they will be able to make sense of the problems we experience and the care we provide in the 21st century These changes necessitate a new paradigm of health service research evaluation and improvement and this new model adopts approaches and methods that embrace complexity The approaches and methods can account for the vicissitudes of front line care the activities of front line staff and the experiences of patients and families where care happens Visualising Health Care Practice Improvement draws on years of video feedback research shaping an approach that enables not only a retrospective understanding but also a view into the future of what might be possible It presents the argument that change is not principally about adopting solutions from elsewhere but that it is conditional on people exploring whether proposed solutions suit existing habituations It involves a process of exploration discovery secession and renewal Health care managers policy makers and shapers will find this book enlightening It will also be empowering to all health care professionals and front line staff
