

Flight Workbook

Principles of FLIGHT

A force is a push or a pull. Four main forces affect the flight behavior of airplanes and aircraft: lift, thrust, and drag. These four forces were first identified by English inventor and scientist Sir George Cayley.

LIFT

Lift is a force that acts against weight caused by air moving over and under the wings.

THRUST

Thrust is the force that moves an object forward, which can be provided by muscles, engines, or gravity.

DRAG

Drag is the force that acts against thrust caused by the resistance of air.

WEIGHT

Weight is the force that pulls everything toward the earth due to gravity.

Lift and weight are opposite forces, and so are thrust and drag.

What do you think happens when one of these forces is greater than the other (i.e., when lift is greater than weight)?

ORY of FLIGHT

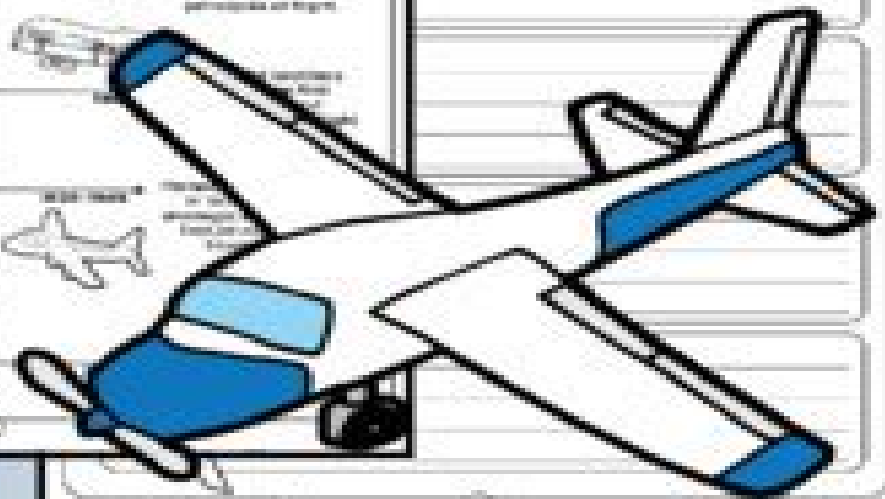

Man flying for millions of years, birds have some secrets, which can be used to fly. This knowledge can be used to make a better plane.

ING Flight

Lift, thrust, drag, weight, can be affected by many variables.

Write the four principles of flight.
