recovery of nature as an emotionally charged practice J rgensen argues that the recovery of nature identifying that something is lost and then going out to find it and bring it back is a nostalgic practice that looks to a historical past and relies on the concept of belonging to justify future oriented action The recovery impulse depends on emotional responses to what is lost particularly a longing for recovery that manifests itself in such emotions as guilt hope fear and grief J rgensen explains why emotional frameworks matter deeply both for how people understand nature theoretically and how they interact with it physically The identification of what belongs the lost nature and our longing the emotional attachment to it in the present will affect how environmental restoration practices are carried out in the future A sustainable future will depend on questioning how and why belonging and longing factor into the choices we make about what to recover The Condor ,1901
