Native Americans have lived in Florida for more than 13,000 years. Hunting, gathering and fishing was a prevailing way of life. During the last 1,000 years, some tribes also adopted agriculture. As time passed, Florida's Native Americans grew in number, and their cultures became more complex. They lived mostly near water in villages or camps.

In the 1500's, Native Americans were decimated by disease, warfare and slavery brought by Europeans, and also from wars with other tribes. By the 1700's their numbers were reduced to remnants. At this time, Creek Indians from Alabama and Georgia moved into Florida and became known as the Seminoles.
