Choice of Law for American Courts Edwin S. Fruehwald, 2001-03-30 This study proposes a multilateralist method of choice of law in order to alleviate the great disarray that currently exists in American choice law In the early 20th century there was a fairly uniform multilateralist method of choice law In the 1920s and 30s however scholars and courts began to reject this method Viewed as too mechanical the method sometimes resulted in the choice of law of a state with only a tenuous connection to the controversy Currently state courts use four different approaches to choice law with numerous material variations This study rejects these approaches on normative constitutional and practical grounds Instead it advocates that courts adopt a multilateralist approach to choice of law that is forum and content neutral and that respects the rights of both individuals and states The study also argues that such an approach should satisfy a constitutional standard that requires a court not choose one state's law when another state has a significantly closer connection to controversy The proposed method consists of two parts The first part determines the states that have created legal relations applying to the dispute When more than one state has created a legal relation applying to the dispute When more than one state has created a legal relation that applies to the controversy the second part adopts the law of the state that had the closest connection The study then applies the suggested method to numerous choice of law problems Florida Public Adjuster's
