Perfumes P.M. Muller,D. Lamparsky,2012-12-06 The idea of publishing this book on Perfumes Art Science and Technology grew out of the observation that on the verge of the 1990s there was really no state of the art compilation of the relevant know how on which the fragrance industry is based It was obvious that such a compilation would be well received not only by perfumers and fragrance chemists but also by those involved in related trade and marketing or in the development and distribution of consumer products by researchers from other fields by students and finally by amateurs of perfumes in general Therefore we set out to find competent authors who were willing to contribute to the endeavour and we did not do this unselfishly on the contrary we selected a wish list of specialists who would provide us with new insight and characterize the trends and research priorities determining the future Thus we were counting on learning much ourselves in the course of the project We were more than pleasantly surprised by the reactions to our first letter and so was Elsevier We certainly had not expected perfumers who are usually much more doers than writers to react in such an enthusiastic way especially the spontaneous affirmative answer from the famous E Roudnitska created a momentum which contributed significantly to the successful completion of this book But of course we should not create the impression that the other authors chapters are less important and we thank all of them heartily for their invaluable effort Hidden Power of Smell Paul A. Moore, 2015-08-27 The main purpose of the book is to provide insight into an area that humans often take for granted There are wonderful and exciting stories of organisms using chemical signals as a basis of a sophisticated communication system In many instances chemical signals can provide more detailed and accurate information than any other mode of communication yet this world is hidden from us because of our focus on visual and auditory signals Although we have a diversity of senses available to us humans are primarily auditory and visual animals These stimuli are sent to the more cognitive areas of our brain where they are immediately processed for information We use sounds to communicate and music to excite or soothe us Our vision provides us with communication entertainment and information about our world Even though our world is dominated by other stimulus energies we have chosen in an evolutionary sense either auditory or visual signals to carry our most important information This is not the case for most other organisms Chemical signals mediated through the sense of smell and taste are typically more important and are used more often than other sensory signals The world of communication using chemicals is an alien world for us We are unaware of how important chemical signals are to other organisms and we often overlook the influence of chemical signals in our own life Part of this naiveté about chemical signals is due to our cultural focus on visual and auditory signals but a larger part of our collective ignorance is the lack of information about chemical communication in both popular and scientific writings The popular press and popular writings virtually ignore the chemical senses especially in regard to their role or influence for humans and our human culture Academic books and textbooks are no better

Officer to a remote part of south west Arabia on the edge of the great desert called the Empty Quarter In valleys made fertile by seasonal flood waters lay the remains of an ancient civilization I found inscriptions and the ruin sites of towns palaces and temples Almost buried under the sand dunes were the tumbled walls of a great city From here two thousand years before huge camel caravans had trudged their way along 1600 miles of burning sand and rocks to Petra and Gaza burdened with a most precious cargo frankincense myrrh and other perfume materials for the courts temples and perfume shops of Rome My book Frankincense and Myrrh delved into the details of this romantic trade and led to a broader interest in the perfumes of ancient times Then researching on behalf of a perfume house into the Arab contribution to perfumery I came across the collection of perfume recipes assembled by the Arab philosopher scientist Yaqub al Kindi which have never been translated into English some which I have translated myself are now included in an appendix to this book I realized that in that work I had found key evidence to demonstrate how the medieval Arab perfume makers had been the bridge in perfume history between ancient and modern times Perfumery could now be seen as an art with a continuous history of development since the dawn of civilization
