Ecology, World Resources and the Quality of Social Life, 1993 Annotated

Bibliography in Human Ecology Anna Siniarska, Federico Dickinson, 1996 Human ecology is a synthetic transdisciplinary science concerned with human life and culture as a dynamic component of ecosystems Typical of an interdisciplinary science is an approach which integrates topics under study across the usual traditional or classical branches of science Human ecology synthesizes part of the knowledge of several classical disciplines in a specific way Of the many possible research orientations for understanding the relationship of people to their environment not all are ecological and only a few can be considered human ecology More than 50 per cent of accumulated human knowledge is related to the study of man and some aspect of our environment If we called all this knowledge human ecology it would be a meaningless generalization Because science has been based on the study of specific topics for example such classic disciplines as physics geology biology anthropology and interactions such as genetics and ecology or problems such as auxology and evolution human ecology provides a definite transdisciplinary approach to study by assuming specific perspectives Human ecology may be considered to have two parallel foci 1 an academic human ecology as a scientific discipline and 2 an action oriented human ecology which is technological environmental engineering environmental preservation environmental education and health protection against environmental deterioration In human ecology several categorical divisions and research perspectives may be defined and delimited into 4 main groups 1 Philosophical problems of human ecology 2 Social and biological problems of the human environment 3 Ecological problems of human biology 4 Cultural adaptive behavior The works of about one hundred ninety persons were classified and included in this volume there are abstracts from others whose addresses are not included
