Trading with the Ottomans Despina Vlami, 2014-12-05 Arguably trade is the engine of history and the acceleration in what you might call globalism from the beginning of the last millennium has been driven by communities interacting with each other through commerce and exchange The Ottoman empire was a trading partner for the rest of the world and therefore the key link between the west and the middle east in the fifteenth to nineteenth centuries much academic attention has been given to the east india Company but less well known is the Levant Company which had the exclusive right to trade with the Ottoman empire from 1581 to 1825 The Levant Company exported British manufacturing colonial goods and raw materials and imported silk cotton spices currants and other Levantine goods it set up factories trading establishments across Ottoman lands and hired consuls company employees and agents from among its members as well as foreign tradesmen and locals here despina vlami outlines the relationship between the Ottoman empire and the Levant Company and traces the company's last glimpses of prosperity combined with slump periods and tension as both the Ottoman and the British empire faced significant change and war she points out that the growth of free trade and the end of protectionism coincided with modernisation and reforms and while doing so provides a new lens through which to view the decline of the Ottoman world
