Congressional Trade Votes Robert E. Baldwin,Christopher S. Magee,2000 The unwillingness of the US House of Representatives to renew fast track authority in 1997 and 1998 means that further trade liberalization for the United States is likely to slow down or grind to a halt since negotiators elsewhere know that any agreements reached could be modified by the US Congress This political impasse raises several overarching questions Does the status of fast track represent a temporary or a permanent setback in the postwar trend toward freer trade Is it due simply to lax efforts in mobilizing groups that support trade liberalization or is US trade policy becoming more protectionist More generally what were the most important economic and social factors shaping congressional voting on trade legislation in the 1990s How do these factors differ for the various trade bills Congress considered over this period Baldwin and Magee attempt to answer these questions by analyzing three key trade bills NAFTA in 1993 the legislation implementing the Uruguay Round agreements in 1994 and the House bill seeking to renew fast track authority in 1998 The authors provide a brief legislative history of each and then outline a conceptual framework for their analysis Focusing on district and state economic conditions ideological leanings and campaign contributions they find both predictable and surprising relationships in the data Japan in the World Economy

Bela Balassa,Marcus Noland,1988 Measuring the Costs of Protection in China Shuguang Zhang,Yansheng Zhang,Zhongxin Wan,1999 Table of Contents Unfinished Business Gary Clyde Hufbauer,Erika Wada,1997 In February 1997 69 countries accounting for 95 percent of world telecommunications traffic agreed to open their basic telecommunications service markets In April 1997 28 countries accounting for 80 percent of world trade in information technology IT goods agreed to eliminate tariffs on IT goods by January 2000 These two agreements represent significant steps toward global telecommunication liberalization The agreements also mark the beginning of new battles that will determine the extent of competition and reform in the telecommunications industry in the 21st century Although implementation of the two pacts will be phased in over several years some signatory countries are already facing a backlash from local telecommunications companies and equipment suppliers Hence the issue remains highly contentious around the world In this volume leading scholars from different countries offer their assessments of the two new agreements They also predict the evolution of the telecommunications industry in the years ahead The volume provides essential background on future developments in this dynamic and crucial sector and suggests ways in which it can be shaped to provide maximum benefits for the world economy NAFTA Gary Clyde Hufbauer,Jeffrey J. Estimating Equilibrium Exchange Rates John Williamson,1994 The problems of exchange rate misalignments and the resulting payments imbalances have plagued the world economy for decades At the Louvre Accord of 1987 the Group of Five industrial countries adopted a system of reference ranges for exchange rate management influenced by proposals of C Fred Bergstan and John Williamson for a target zone system The reference range approach has however been operated only intermittently and half heartedly and questions continue to be raised in policy and scholarly circles about the design and operation of a full fledged target zone regime This volume with chapters by leading international economists explores one crucial issue in the design of a target zone system the problem of calculating Williamson s concept of the fundamental equilibrium exchange rate FEER Williamson contributes an overview of the policy and analytic issues and a second chapter on his own calculations
