Spatial Economics for Building Back Better Masahisa Fujita, Nobuaki Hamaguchi, Yoshihiro Kameyama, 2021-10-17 The central theme of this book is national land and infrastructure design in the age of the declining population and the recovery from the Great East Japan Earthquake in the affected regions in Japan Based on the theory of spatial economics and evidence from Japanese history the authors show that the growing economy with a population increase develops into a multi cored and complex structure In the population decline phase however such construction will be destabilized because of agglomeration economies in the central core Then a catastrophic shock that strikes may provoke the decline of the lower rank size provincial cities and their eventual disappearance if they compete only in lower prices of staple products Not only is the practice bad for the residents it also leads to lower national welfare resulting from the loss of diversity and overcrowded big cities The authors argue that small local towns can recover and will be sustained if they will endeavor in innovative production by making good use of local natural resources and social capital Under the ongoing declining population in Japan an undesirable concentration in Tokyo will proceed further with increasing social cost and risk The recent novel coronavirus pandemic has highlighted that concern

A New Economics for Modern Dynamic Economies Angelo Fusari, 2016-10-04 It is becoming increasingly clear that a new economics is required for investigating modern dynamic economies and the coming social world Important features of those economies such as innovation uncertainty and entrepreneurship are usually considered capitalist features This may have been true historically but this book argues that the contrary will be true for the future the full and efficient operation of those supposed capitalist features will increasingly require the overcoming of capitalist civilization In this book Angelo Fusari constructs a theoretical framework for the interpretation and management of modern dynamic economies which demonstrates that institutional transformations are essential if we are to move beyond the current consumer capitalist age and the age of the domination of financial capital A New Economics for Modern Dynamic Economies opens with a consideration of the basic aspects of modern dynamic economies and proceeds to develop a representation of the whole economic system centred on the interrelationships between entrepreneurship innovation and radical uncertainty in a dynamic competition process This model provides an explanation of business cycles that largely differs from current explanations as it derives from the notion of dynamic competition The book is then extended from the sectoral to the micro level and then to the level of the firm The second half of the book is concerned with operational problems and in particular with the integration of this analysis of cycles with the notion of historical phases of development The final chapter explores the route of the transition from capitalism to a new economic and social order a transition of vital importance both for the contemporary world and for the coming world This volume is of great interest to those who study political economy macroeconomics and economic theory and philosophy The book shows the possibility of a scientific explanation of important ethical principles as indispensable to the organizational efficiency of the social system for instance the necessity and the way to conciliate productive efficiency social justice and individual freedom      Economics for Fisheries Management R. Applied Economics for Development: Empirical Approaches to Selected Social and Economic Issues in Transition Economies Mahmut Zortuk,2018-01-15

Transition economies experience transformation of their economic system Following the disintegration of the Soviet Union a number of former socialist countries underwent transitions from central planning to a market economy More generally many rapidly growing economies undergo no less profound transformations of their economic systems Contrary to common misconception the transition process cannot be simply reduced to eliminating state intervention and liberalizing the economy Economies under transition exhibit a unique set of policy challenges Unlike developed market economies missing markets or market failures abound Economic transformation takes the form of rapidly evolving patterns of international trade and investment industrial structure and consumption These changes call for appropriate public policies A continuing flow of investment hinges on suitable institutions the provision of public infrastructure and other public goods Adequate regulation can be central in ensuring that environmental resources are sustainably managed And sophisticated production systems call for corresponding social institutions in terms of education health and welfare provisions In all these cases accurate empirical assessments are central to the design of effective policy This book presents a selection of pressing economic and social issues in transition economies Selected issues include the development of particular industrial sectors the drivers and consequences of foreign direct investment public finances urbanization social indicators environmental policy and energy diversification In each case an original empirical analysis is performed using a variety of advanced quantitative methods applied to recent data The book will be of interest to economists studying transition economies economic development or having a general interest in applied economics It will be of particular interest to applied economists policy analysts and policy makers in transition economies concerned with the shape and direction of appropriate economic reforms
