Employment And Economic Growth In Urban China 1949 57:

Employment and Economic Growth in Urban China Christopher Howe,1971 Employment and Economic Growth in Urban China 1949-1957 Christopher Howe,2010-06-10 A study of China s urban employment problems between 1949 and 1957 Its main objectives are to analyse the size and determinants or urban employment change and to trace the evolution both of Chinese thinking about employment and the institutions of labour control that reflected this thinking in day to day administration China, Liberation and Transformation, 1942-1962 Bill Brugger,1981-01-01 This modern history of China uses the most recently revealed available evidence and is concerned principally with the leadership and people of China during the 1942 1962 period Wage Patterns and Wage Policy in Modern China 1919-1972 Christopher Howe,1973-07-12 The author explains both fluctuations in policy and discrepancies between plans and reality and examines the mechanisms of wage determination In so doing he makes it clear that even in a highly planned society there are some limits to what is possible in the regulation of wages and incomes Economic Growth and Distribution in China Nicholas R. Lardy,1978-08-31 This study focuses on the China s leadership s attempt to improve economic efficiency by decentralizing economic management Area Handbook for the People's Republic of China Donald P. Whitaker,Rinn-Sup Shinn (Foreign affairs analyst),1972 China, a Country Study Frederica M. Bunge,In-sǒp Sin,1981 Shanghai Christopher Howe,1981-05-07 This book is a comprehensive study of the way in which old Shanghai was transformed and developed by the Communist Party between 1949 and the later 1970s Urban Life in Contemporary China Martin King Whyte,William L. Parish,1985-11-15 Through interviews with city residents Martin King Whyte and William L Parish provide a unique survey of urban life in the last decade of Mao Zedong s rule They conclude that changes in society produced under communism were truly revolutionary and that in the decade under scrutiny the Chinese avoided ostensibly universal evils of urbanism with considerable success At the same time however they find that this successful effort spawned new and equally serious urban problems bureaucratic rigidity low production and more Administrative and Technical Manpower in the People's Republic of China John Philip Emerson,1973 Draft of U S Bureau of the Census International population reports series P 95 no 72

International Population Reports , Chinese Marxism in Flux 1978-84 Bill Brugger,2018-09-18 This book first published in 1985 considers the state of Marxist thought in China at the time a time when the country s leadership appeared more concerned with attaining modernisation and economic development than Marxist theory It considers the problems that Chinese Marxist intellectuals were facing and relates them to the actions of the political leadership The Gang of Four their utopianism and dogmatism had been denounced and this book argues that rather than being in retreat Chinese Marxism was in fact enjoying a productive period Competition and Cooperation of Enterprises on National and International Markets (19th-20th Century) Hans Pohl,1997 Inhalt Hans Pohl Introduction International Markets Wilfried Feldenkirchen Competition and Cooperation in the German Electrical Industry in the Home and World Markets Harm G Schroter Fields of Competition the last century Taking on the conventional view that socialist China and other Soviet type societies represented the domination of bureaucracy he argues that these societies were not bureaucratic enough Red Silk Robert Cliver, 2021-02-01 Red Silk is a history of China's Yangzi Delta silk industry during the wars crises and revolutions of the mid twentieth century Based on extensive research in Chinese archives and focused on the 1950s the book compares two very different groups of silk workers and their experiences in the revolution Male silk weavers in Shanghai factories enjoyed close ties to the Communist party state and benefited greatly from socialist policies after 1949 In contrast workers in silk thread mills or filatures were mostly young women who lacked powerful organizations or ties to the revolutionary regime For many filature workers working conditions changed little after 1949 and politicized production campaigns added a new burden within the brutal and oppressive factory regime in place since the nineteenth century Both groups of workers and their employers had to adapt to rapidly changing circumstances Their actions protests petitions bribery tax evasion compelled the party state to adjust its policies producing new challenges The results though initially positive for many were ultimately disastrous By the end of the 1950s there was widespread conflict and deprivation among silk workers and despite its impressive recovery under Communist rule the industry faced a crisis worse than war and revolution China Watching

Sources of Chinese Economic Growth, 1978-1996 Chris

Bramall, 2000-09-14 This analysis of the political economy of growth in the era of Deng Xiaoping takes issue with the growth accounting methodologies and market centred explanations which characterize so much of the literature on transition era China. By adopting an approach which echoes the pioneering work of Chalmers Johnson, Alice Amsden and Robert Wade on other East Asian Economies and which makes full use of the rich statistical materials that have become available since 1978, this book shows that Chinese growth was driven by a combination of state led industrial policy and the favourable infrastructural legacies of the Maoist era. And in giving due weight to the sheer complexity of the growth process by looking in detail at the experience of four very different Chinese regions, it avoids over simplistic macroeconomic generalization. Nevertheless, even this type of approach is inadequate because it fails to explain why industrial policy has been so much more successful in China than in other countries. This book therefore goes beyond the development state approach to argue that state autonomy in China reflected the remarkably equal distribution of income and wealth at the end of the 1970s and paradoxically the destruction of party structures and institutions during the Cultural Revolution. The policy implications are stark. The Chinese experience demonstrates that industrial policy and state spending on physical and social infrastructure can produce rich rewards; conversely slavish reliance on foreign direct investment and trade are likely to limit the pace of growth. But attempts to replicate China's success in Latin America, sub-Saharan Africa and South Asia will fail because their governments will not resist rent seeking by classes and interest groups. Moreover, as the state becomes weaker in the wake of the re-emergence of a powerful capitalist class, even Chinese growth may prove unsustainable.

The Transformation of the Communist Economies Ha-Joon Chang, Peter Nolan, 2016-07-27 The mainstream view of the way in which best to transform the communist economies was that there should be a rapid transition to a free market economy and political democracy. The articles in this book challenge this view. They do so from the standpoint of economic and political theory and from an evaluation of the comparative experience of different reforming countries in Europe and Asia. This book represents the first systematic attempt to try to explain the dramatic contrast in outcome between reforming countries that have pursued comprehensive system reform and those that have pursued cautious experimental strategies.
