High-Technology Development in Regional Economic Growth Byung-Rok Choi, 2019-06-04 This title was first published in 2003 Korea has had considerable success in developing its high technology industries and these have become significant employers in this region By analysing the situation in Korea this book explores the effects of dynamic externalities on the growth of regional employment in the high technology industries It puts forward innovative simultaneous equation models to test three sets of hypotheses related to so called Jacobs and MAR effects differentiated by firm size organizational type and product Clear evidence is found for endogenous technological progress marked by positive feedback especially for small firms in diversified high technology enclaves There are technological externalities associated with knowledge spillovers and local employment has indirect effects on employment growth via dynamic externalities The implications for local economic development policy are outlined in a concluding section

The Jobs of Tomorrow Mark A. Dutz, Rita K. Almeida, Truman G. Packard, 2018-04-10 While adoption of new technologies is understood to enhance long term growth and average per capita incomes its impact on lower skilled workers is more complex and merits clarification Concerns abound that advanced technologies developed in high income countries would inexorably lead to job losses of lower skilled less well off workers and exacerbate inequality Conversely there are countervailing concerns that policies intended to protect jobs from technology advancement would themselves stultify progress and depress productivity This book squarely addresses both sets of concerns with new research showing that adoption of digital technologies offers a pathway to more inclusive growth by increasing adopting firms outputs with the jobs enhancing impact of technology adoption assisted by growth enhancing policies that foster sizable output expansion The research reported here demonstrates with economic theory and data from Argentina Brazil Chile Colombia and Mexico that lower skilled workers can benefit from adoption of productivity enhancing technologies biased towards skilled workers and often do The inclusive jobs outcomes arise when the effects of increased productivity and expanding output overcome the substitution of workers for technology While the substitution effect replaces some lower skilled workers with new technology and more highly skilled labor the output effect can lead to an increase in the total number of jobs for less skilled workers Critically output can increase sufficiently to increase jobs across all tasks and skill types within adopting firms including jobs for lower skilled workers as long as lower skilled task content remains complementary to new technologies and related occupations are not completely automated and replaced by machines It is this channel for inclusive growth that underlies the power of pro competitive enabling policies and institutions such as regulations encouraging firms to compete and policies supporting the development of skills that technology augments rather than replaces to ensure that the positive impact of technology adoption on productivity and lower skilled workers is realized Technologies for Basic Needs Hans Wolfgang Singer,1982 ILO pub WEP pub Monograph on the appropriate choice of technology to satisfy basic needs in the economic development of developing countries proposes use of local level technology rather than technology transfer discusses the role of research and development extension services etc and refers to the need for education and training of technicians and trainers and to the role of ILO etc and includes a directory of development centres dealing mainly with small scale and rural area technologies References The Struggle for Economic Development Michael P.
