 Puerto Rico, the largest island in the Caribbean, is 34 miles long and 35 miles wide. It is located in the northern part of the Caribbean Sea, between the Atlantic Ocean and the Gulf of Mexico. The island is surrounded by the Puerto Rico Trench to the north, the Mona Passage to the south, and the Virgin Islands to the east. The island is divided into four main regions: the northern region, the central region, the southern region, and the western region. The northern region is the most mountainous, with the highest peaks in the Cordillera Central. The central region is the most fertile, with the most productive agricultural land. The southern region is the most coastal, with the most developed tourism industry. The western region is the most urban, with the most developed infrastructure.
