International Governance and Risk Management Toshihiro Ithori, Martin C. McGuire, Shintaro Nakagawa, 2019-07-23 In this book the authors demonstrate how the economics of insurance risk reduction and damage control or limitation can be combined with concepts of collective choice and collective behavior to improve analysis of the escalating threats faced by alliances throughout the world The book develops a theory of risk management as integrating likelihood of loss magnitude of loss and isolation from loss into a consolidated model It extends existing concepts of individual risk management by a single person to decision theory for an entire country managed by a government bureaucracy and lodged in a universe of overlapping alliances The authors uncover a tendency inherent in any bureaucracy for policy coordination in the realm of risk control to fail because of misunderstanding disinterest or perverse incentives Understanding such incentives is essential to any sort of progress in risk management of proliferating national and global threats Self protection aims to reduce the chances of loss This reduction may require the use or threat or promise of use of defensive military weapons or depending on context the use of offensive military weapons Japan's constitution limits Japan to use of defensive measures only even if Japan and the USA have formed a military alliance This places Japan at an economic corner solution of providing only self insurance However the Abe government intends to change the interpretation of the constitution so that Japan can provide a full range of self protection as well as self insurance With the prospect of such constitutional change this book becomes of special relevance to Japan's national security
