elite perspectives It uses the ethnic boundary making model an empirically based sociological model to link macro level characteristics of the social field with individual agency in ethnic construction It uses a wide range of written sources as evidence for constructions of Jewishness and relates these to a local specific understanding of demographic and institutional characteristics informed by material culture The result is a diachronic study of how institutional changes under Seleucid Hasmonean and Early Roman rule influenced the ways that members of the ruling elite retainer class and marginalized groups presented their preferred visions of Jewishness These sometimes competing visions advance different strategies to maintain rework or blur the boundaries between Jews and others The study provides the next step toward a thick description of Jewishness in antiquity by introducing needed systematization for relating written sources from different social strata with their contexts
