R. Brian Howe, Katherine Covell

Empowering Children:

Empowering Children R. Brian Howe, Katherine Covell, 2007-06-09 Approved by the General Assembly of the United Nations in 1989 the United Nations Convention on the Rights of the Child affirms that children in all countries have fundamental rights including rights to education To date 192 states are signatories to or have in some form ratified the accord Children are still imperilled in many countries however and are often not made aware of their guaranteed rights In Empowering Children R Brian Howe and Katherine Covell assert that educating children about their basic rights is a necessary means not only of fulfilling a country s legal obligations but also of advancing education about democratic principles and the practice of citizenship The authors contend that children s rights education empowers children as persons and as rights respecting citizens in democratic societies Such education has a contagion effect that brings about a general social knowledge on human rights and social responsibility Although there remain obstacles to the implementation of children s rights in many countries Howe and Covell argue that reforming schools and enhancing teacher education are absolutely essential to the creation of a new culture of respect toward children as citizens Their thorough and passionate work marks a significant advance in the field

Educational Research and Innovation What Does Child

Empowerment Mean Today? Implications for Education and Well-being OECD,2024-05-15 Childhood is changing in ways that we are still unpacking affected by digitalization globalization and climate change as well as shocks such as the COVID 19 pandemic In many OECD education systems child empowerment is increasingly an explicit aim of policies and practices But it is often poorly defined which risks turning it into a mere slogan With the advancement of children s rights children are increasingly being included as stakeholders in decision making processes This report gives examples of how children in OECD countries can and do participate in making decisions about issues that affect them The report examines children s emotional well being and physical activity and the role of schools as a physical space to create and support relationships It also underlines the untapped potential of media education when it comes to seizing opportunities in childhood Empowering all children to make the most of digital opportunities starts with further narrowing the gap in terms of access to digital tools and the Internet where inequalities are persistent and pervasive So what does child empowerment mean today Empowered children have the opportunity and ability to act on issues important and relevant to them can learn by making mistakes and are key contributors to democracy

Children and Disasters Joseph Capozzoli, 2002-04-18 Today one in every three Americans will be affected by trauma and the most vulnerable among these victims are children. Children and adolescents in our communities are exposed to disastrous and devastating events including natural disasters, violence, accidents, and most recently terrorist attacks that have a great impact on their emotional and physical well-being. Children in Disasters is a training manual and reference for those who provide psychological relief in the wake of disasters. The expert contributors offer guidance for helping children integrate their traumatic experiences, develop healthy coping skills, and restore a sense of safety. The Child's World Janet Anne Basarab-Horwath, 2001-01-01 Written for professionals involved in the assessment of children in need, this book is a comprehensive guide to recent developments in research and practice. It looks at the policy framework for assessment, the actual process of assessment, how to assess the developmental needs of children, and how to assess their parents and family's capacity to meet those needs. The contributors are experts from a range of fields, and the guide, which was developed by the NSPCC and is published in association with them, is designed to facilitate productive joint agency work. Key topics covered include ecological perspectives on the child, attachment theory, and child development, assessing families where the parents have a learning disability, working with children and families from minority ethnic groups, the effect of sexual abuse within the family on the assessment process, assessment prior to birth. Originally commissioned by the Department of Health and outlining the developments and theory underpinning their Framework for the Assessment of Children in Need and their Families, this book will be essential reading for qualified and trainee social workers and those completing the Post Qualifying Award in Child Care. It will also be an indispensable guide for psychologists, teachers, health visitors, and any other professionals and qualifying professionals involved in the assessment of children in need.
