Ciulla, 2014-09-09 Top academic scholars ponder the question of ethics as it pertains to all aspects of leadership in business government and nonprofit organizations If leaders were defined by their influence on history Hitler would be on par with Gandhi Lincoln and Mother Theresa Yet most of us believe that our superiors have a responsibility to exercise power with a purpose far greater than any political agenda and a motive more noble than personal gain This thought provoking collection of essays explores the ethical challenges that leaders face in their relationships with followers the choices they make and the ways in which they influence others Joanne Ciulla and her contributors examine the traits and characteristics of top tier leaders She questions the assumption that moral fortitude is an inherent part of being in charge analyzes the roles that charisma morality and delegation play in the leadership paradigm and considers whether individuals who want to lead with integrity but are sometimes forced to get their hands dirty for their constituents can be called moral leaders Readers will gain an appreciation for how ethics is not an add on to the practice of leadership but rather an integral part of it an element that informs the very idea of what it means to lead and to lead well Research for Social Justice Elly Malihah, Tutin Aryanti, Vina Adriany, Hani Yulindrasari, Alicia Izharuddin, 2019-10-24 Individuals are equipped with a wide range of knowledge that enhances their employability health family life and social engagement On this basis providing equality for all has been set to be achieved as one of the United Nations sustainable development priorities However the international understandings are not only of what equality and inclusivity entail but also the social vision to achieve social justice Best practices provide a meaningful cross national discussion with respect to the following topics power relations within research social inequalities in society science research for social justice the redefinition of the notion of social justice education for social justice spatial justice the

Networking Arguments presents an original study on the use and misuse of global institutional rhetoric and the effects of these practices on women particularly in developing countries Using a feminist lens Rebecca Dingo views the complex networks that rhetoric flows through globally and nationally and how it is often reconfigured to work both for and against women and to maintain existing power structures To see how rhetorics travel Dingo deconstructs the central terminology employed by global institutions mainstreaming fitness and empowerment and shows how their meanings shift depending on the contexts in which they are used She studies programs by the World Bank the United Nations and the United States among others to view the original policies then follows the trail of their diffusion and manipulation and the ultimate consequences for individuals To analyze transnational rhetorical processes Dingo builds a theoretical framework by employing concepts of transcoding ideological traffic and interarticulation to uncover the intricacies of power relationships at work within networks She also views transnational capitalism neoliberal economics and neocolonial ideologies as primary determinants of policy and arguments over women's roles in the global economy Networking Arguments offers a new method of feminist rhetorical analysis that allows for an increased understanding of global gender policies and encourages strategies to counteract the negative effects they can create
