Bradley, David Patrick Cahill, 2000-01-01 The two case studies presented in this book represent two distinct types of imagining by two diametrically different groups literate and in some cases erudite Europeans and a vanquished native nobility The former endeavoured to make sense of Spain's and Portugal's marvellous possessions in the New World with the limited conceptual tools at their disposal the latter to construct a colonial identity based on their shared ancestral memory while incorporating elements from the even more wondrous Hispanic culture that had overwhelmed them There were of course multiple misunderstandings and misinterpretations Yet for the Spanish such distortions were a matter of government and religion rectifiable in the fullness of time whether by evangelisation or the relentless application of civil and canon law
