The poster features two main figures. On the left, Jean Gabin stands in a dark, double-breasted suit with a white pocket square, his hands in his pockets, looking directly at the viewer. On the right, Brigitte Bardot is shown from the waist up, leaning over a dark wooden piano. She has long, wavy blonde hair and is wearing a vibrant red jacket over a black skirt. Her gaze is directed towards the left, away from the camera. The background is a textured, greyish-blue. The title 'En cas de malheur' is written in a large, white, serif font across the bottom of the poster, partially overlapping the figures.

Stardom in Postwar France John Gaffney, Diana Holmes, 2008-02-01 The 1950s and 1960s were a key moment in the development of postwar France The period was one of rapid change derived from post World War II economic and social modernization yet many traditional characteristics were retained By analyzing the eruption of the new postwar world in the context of a France that was both modern and traditional we can see how these worlds met and interacted and how they set the scene for the turbulent 1960s and 70s The examination of the development of mass culture in post war France undertaken in this volume offers a valuable insight into the shifts that took place By exploring stardom from the domain of cinema and other fields represented here by famous figures such as Brigitte Bardot Johnny Hallyday or Jean Luc Godard and less conventionally treated areas of enquiry politics de Gaulle literary Fran oise Sagan and intellectual culture L vi Strauss the reader is provided with a broad understanding of the mechanisms of popularity and success and their cultural social and political roles The picture that emerges shows that many cultural articulations remained or became identifiably French in spite of the American mass culture origins of these social economic and cultural transformations
