Health in Megacities and Urban Areas Alexander Krämer, Mobarak Hossain Khan, Frauke Kraas, 2011-07-06 Diverse driving forces processes and actors are responsible for different trends in the development of megacities and large urban areas Under the dynamics of global change megacities are themselves changing On the one hand they are prone to increasing socio economic vulnerability due to pronounced poverty socio spatial and political fragmentation sometimes with extreme forms of segregation disparities and conflicts On the other hand megacities offer positive potential for global transformation e g minimisation of space consumption highly effective use of resources efficient disaster prevention and health care options if good strategies were developed At present in many megacities and urban areas of the developing world and the emerging economies the quality of life is eroding Most of the megacities have grown to unprecedented size and the pace of urbanisation has far exceeded the growth of the necessary infrastructure and services As a result an increasing number of urban dwellers are left without access to basic amenities like clean drinking water fresh air and safe food Additionally social inequalities lead to subsequent and significant intra urban health inequalities and unbalanced disease burdens that can trigger conflict and violence between subpopulations The guiding idea of our book lies in a multi and interdisciplinary approach to the complex topic of megacities and urban health that can only be adequately understood when different disciplines share their knowledge and methodological tools to work together We hope that the book will allow readersto deepen their understanding of the complex dynamics of urban and megacity populations through the lens of public health geographical and other research perspectives
