Peres, 2010-01-22 In recent years scholars have emphasized the need for more holistic subsistence analyses and collaborative publications towards this endeavor have become more numerous in the literature However there are relatively few attempts to qualitatively integrate zooarchaeological animal and paleoethnobotanical plant data and even fewer attempts to quantitatively integrate these two types of subsistence evidence Given the vastly different methods used in recovering and quantifying these data not to mention their different preservational histories it is no wonder that so few have undertaken this problem Integrating Zooarchaeology and Paleoethnobotany takes the lead in tackling this important issue by addressing the methodological limitations of data integration proposing new methods and innovative ways of using established methods and highlighting case studies that successfully employ these methods to shed new light on ancient foodways The volume challenges the perception that plant and animal foodways are distinct and contends that the separation of the analysis of archaeological plant and animal remains sets up a false dichotomy between these portions of the diet In advocating qualitative and quantitative data integration the volume establishes a clear set of methods for 1 determining the suitability of data integration in any particular case and 2 carrying out an integrated qualitative or quantitative approach Conservation Biology Peggy L. Fiedler, 2012-12-06 John Harper Nature conservation has changed from an idealistic philosophy to a serious technology Ecology the science that underpins the technology of conservation is still too immature to provide all the wisdom that it must It is arguable that the desire to conserve nature will in itself force the discipline of ecology to identify fundamental problems in its scientific goals and methods In return ecologists may be able to offer some insights that make conservation more practicable Harper 1987 The idea that nature species or communities is worth preserving rests on several fundamental arguments particularly the argument of nostalgia and the argument of human benefit and need Nostalgia of course is a powerful emotion With some notable exceptions there is usually a feeling of dismay at a change in the status quo whether it be the loss of a place in the country for walking or rambling the loss of a painting or architectural monument or that one will never again have the chance to see a particular species of bird or plant
