British Women Writers and the Writing of History, 1670-1820 Devoney Looser, 2003-05-01 Chosen by Choice Magazine as an Outstanding Academic Title Until recently history writing has been understood as a male enclave from which women were restricted particularly prior to the nineteenth century The first book to look at British women writers and their contributions to historiography during the long eighteenth century British Women Writers and the Writing of History 1670 1820 asks why rather than writing history that included their own sex some women of this period chose to write the same kind of history as men one that marginalized or excluded women altogether But as Devoney Looser demonstrates although British women's historically informed writings were not necessarily feminist or even female focused they were intimately involved in debates over and conversations about the genre of history Looser investigates the careers of Lucy Hutchinson Lady Mary Wortley Montagu Charlotte Lennox Catharine Macaulay Hester Lynch Piozzi and Jane Austen and shows how each of their contributions to historical discourse differed greatly as a result of political historical religious class and generic affiliations Adding their contributions to accounts of early modern writing refutes the assumption that historiography was an exclusive men's club and that fiction was the only prose genre open to women

Studies in Late Modern English Correspondence Marina Dossena, Ingrid Tieken-Boon van Ostade, 2008 The studies presented in this volume concentrate on aspects of Late Modern English correspondence in the usage of individuals belonging to different social classes writing for different purposes and finding themselves in different social contexts both in Britain and in its colonies As the growing body of research published in recent years has shown analysing the language of letters presents both a challenge and an opportunity to obtain access to as full a range of styles as would be possible for a period for which we only have access to the language in its written form It is an area of study in which all the contributors have considerable expertise which affords them to present data findings while discussing important methodological issues In addition in most cases data derive from specially designed second generation corpora reflecting state of the art approaches to historical sociolinguistics and pragmatics Theoretical issues concerning letters as a text type their role in social network analysis and their value in the identification of register or variety specific traits are highlighted alongside issues concerning the often less than easy relationship between strictly codified norms and actual usage on the part of speakers whose level of education could vary considerably
