Spector, 2022-08-23 A Foreign Affairs Best Book of 2022 Marvelous Spector s gripping book helps us to understand why the legacy of these conflicts is still with us today Sheila Miyoshi Jager New York Times Book Review The end of World War II led to the United States emergence as a global superpower For war ravaged Western Europe it marked the beginning of decades of unprecedented cooperation and prosperity that one historian has labeled the long peace Yet half a world away in China Indonesia Vietnam Korea and Malaya the fighting never really stopped as these regions sought to completely sever the yoke of imperialism and colonialism with all too violent consequences East and Southeast Asia quickly became the most turbulent regions of the globe Within weeks of the famous surrender ceremony aboard the U S S Missouri civil war communal clashes and insurgency engulfed the continent from Southeast Asia to the Soviet border By early 1947 full scale wars were raging in China Indonesia and Vietnam with growing guerrilla conflicts in Korea and Malaya Within a decade after the Japanese surrender almost all of the countries of South East and Southeast Asia that had formerly been conquests of the Japanese or colonies of the European powers experienced wars and upheavals that resulted in the deaths of at least 2 5 million combatants and millions of civilians With A Continent Erupts acclaimed military historian Ronald H Spector draws on letters diaries and international archives to provide for the first time a comprehensive military history and analysis of these little known but decisive events Far from being simply offshoots of the Cold War as they have often been portrayed these shockingly violent conflicts forever changed the shape of Asia and the world as we know it today The Chinese Intervention, 3 November 1950-24 January 1951 Richard Winship Stewart, 2000 The Chinese Intervention, 3 November 1950-24 January 1951 ,2000 Blitzkrieg to Desert Storm Robert M. Citino, 2022-05-25 When Germany launched its blitzkrieg invasion of France in 1940 it forever changed the way the world waged war Although the Wehrmacht ultimately succumbed to superior Allied firepower in a two front war its stunning operational achievement left a lasting impression on military commanders throughout the world even if their own operations were rarely executed as effectively Robert Citino analyzes military campaigns from the second half of the twentieth century to further demonstrate the difficulty of achieving decisive results at the operational level Offering detailed operational analyses of actual campaigns Citino describes how UN forces in Korea enjoyed technological and air superiority but found the enemy unbeatable provides analyses of Israeli operational victories in successive wars until the Arab states finally grasped the realities of operational level warfare in 1973 and tells how the Vietnam debacle continued to shape U S doctrine in surprising ways Looking beyond major power conflicts he also reveals the lessons of India s blitzkrieg like drive into Pakistan in 1971 and of the senseless bloodletting of the Iran Iraq War Citino especially considers the evolution of U S doctrine and assesses the success of Desert Storm in dismantling an entrenched defending force with virtually no friendly casualties He also provides one of the first scholarly analyses of Operation Iraqi Freedom showing that its plan was curiously divorced from the realities of military history grounded instead on nebulous theories about expected enemy behavior Throughout Citino points to the importance of mobility especially mobilized armor in modern operational warfare and assesses the respective roles of firepower training doctrine and command and control mechanisms Brimming with new insights Citino s study shows why technical superiority is no guarantee of victory and why a thorough grounding in the history of past campaigns is essential to anyone who wishes to understand modern warfare Blitzkrieg to Desert Storm provides that grounding as it addresses the future of operational level warfare in the post 9 11 era

Marine Corps Tank Battles in Korea Oscar E. Gilbert, 2015-11-24 An award winning military historian delivers an excellent read on tank combat in the Forgotten War based on interviews with veterans who were there MAFVA.org The outbreak of the Korean conflict caught America and the Marine Corps unprepared The Corps salvation was the existence of its Organized Reserve an organization rich in veterans of the fighting in World War II the availability of modern equipment in storage and as always the bravery initiative and adaptability of individual Marines In this follow up to his enormously successful Marine Tank Battles in the Pacific Oscar Gilbert presents an equally exhaustive and detailed account of the little known Marine tank engagements in Korea supported by forty eight photographs eight original maps and dozens of survivor interviews Marine Corps Tank Battles in Korea details every action from the valiant defense at Pusan and the bitter battles of the Chosin Reservoir to the grinding and bloody stalemate along the Jamestown Line Many of these stories are presented here for the first time such as the unique role played by tanks in the destruction of the ill fated Task Force Drysdale how Marine armor played a key role in the defense of Hagaru and how a lone tank made it to Yudamni and then led the breakout across the high Toktong Pass Marine tankers individually and as an organization met every challenge posed by this vicious protracted and forgotten war It is a story of bravery and fortitude you will never forget definitive history of the extensive but little known US Army amphibious operations during the Korean War 1950 1953 Building on its extensive experience in World War II the Army conducted three major landing operations during the war including the assault at Inchon in September 1950 After the massive Chinese attacks two months later the Army executed a series of amphibious withdrawals as it fell back to more defensible positions farther down the peninsula Throughout the war the Army also conducted a number of massive and complex over the shore logistical operations as well as several amphibious special operations along the Korean littoral Colonel Boose's work commissioned by DAMO ODG Operations and Technology Office provides the historical context for any subsequent amphibious operations on the Korean peninsula As such this thought provoking study may provide insights to modern planners crafting future joint or combined operations in that part of the world Publisher's Description The Marine Corps Tanks Collection Oscar E. Daily, 1999 The actual objective of this book is to provide to the American public the brief existence and history of the X Corps during the early stages of the Korean War The title part of the book Inchon to the Yalu is significant to the very important amphibious operations made by the 1st Marine Division and the 7th Infantry Division In later operations the 3rd Infantry Division would become part of the X Corps Great Expectations U. S. Military, Department of Defense (DoD), U. S. Government, 2017-03-31 The U S Army X Corps as an organization presents a rich case study in large unit operations It fought under General Douglas A MacArthur's direct command in 1950 as one of two independent major subordinate commands leading joint and multinational forces without the supervision of an intermediate army headquarters In less than four weeks MacArthur transformed a small planning team into an operational corps headquarters responsible for the successful amphibious assault at Inchon and the liberation of Seoul However just two months later the combat hardened corps narrowly escaped complete destruction by twelve Chinese Communist divisions as it withdrew from the Chosin Reservoir in northeast Korea This monograph examines the corps organizational structure operations process and command environment using contemporary doctrine to discern the factors that affected its ability to expand the Inchon beachhead to secure Seoul prepare for offensive actions in northeast Korea and attack north to the Yalu River Ultimately no single consideration fully explains the corps fate in late 1950 Instead this monograph finds that the X Corps lacked sufficient time to build cohesive teams before commencing operations in Korea neglected to consistently plan ahead provide administrative support or coordinate the actions of its assigned units and proved unable to engender a command environment that fostered teamwork Together these factors largely affected the corps between its success at Inchon and the withdrawal from the Chosin Reservoir The X Corps as an organization presents a rich case study in large unit operations It fought under MacArthur's direct command in 1950 as one of two independent major subordinate commands the other Walker's Eighth Army. As a separate organization the X Corps directed joint and multinational forces in offensive and defensive operations without the supervision of an intermediate army headquarters. Originally the planning team for Operation CHROMITE in less than four weeks MacArthur transformed this core nucleus of planners into an operational corps headquarters responsible for the invasion and the establishment of the Inchon beachhead. This task alone would challenge even the most experienced and cohesive corps headquarters and undoubtedly represented a palpable historical triumph for Almond and his fledgling organization. More poignantly Inchon marked the beginning of a dynamic operational period on the Korean peninsula. Indeed the Corps actions in the ensuing months would span the spectrum of operations, test the limits and endurance of American military personnel and coalition partners and underscore the advantages, challenges and timeless lessons of large unit operations. It is appropriate to ask therefore what factors affected the X Corps ability to conduct operations in Korea between the success at Inchon and the withdrawal from the Chosin Reservoir. Special Report on Chosin Reservoir 27 Nov to 10 Dec 1950 Headquarters X CORPS Command, 2013-08-10. The United Nations counter offensive against the North Korean Army was launched in the middle of September 1950 with the X US Corps executing a successful amphibious envelopment at INCHON. In conjunction with the INCHON landing the Eighth Army attacked north from the PUSAN perimeter and after making a juncture with X Corps at the INCHON SEOUL beachhead continued the exploitation north toward the YALU River. During October Eighth Army continued north to capture the North Korean Capital at PYONGYANG while the I Republic of Korea Corps made a rapid advance along the East Coast of Korea. Meanwhile X Corps mounted a second amphibious envelopment this time against the Northeast Korean Coast. The capture of WONSAN and HUNGNAM important east coast ports by I Republic of Korea Corps obviated assault landings by X Corps and Commanding General X Corp assumed command of all United Nations Forces in the Northeast Zone of Korea on 20 October 1950. Following the debarkation of X Corps elements beginning 26 October the 1st Marine Division and 7th Infantry Division entered the exploitation phase against disintegrating North Korean resistance. The original mission of X Corps to drive west after landing to assist Eighth Army in the capture of PYONGYANG had been changed to an offensive to the North with the objective of reaching the Manchurian and USSR Borders as soon as possible. The sectors of advance were the 1st Marine Division on the West, 7th Infantry Division in the center and I Republic of Korea Corps on the East. By the end of the third week of November the completion of this mission was in sight. The 1st Marine Division had conducted vigorous anti guerrilla operations in the WONSAN HAMHUNG area and had defeated elements of the 124th and 126th Chinese Communist Forces Divisions north of HAMHUNG. After this battle the 7th Marine Regiment had advanced north reaching the southern tip of CHOSIN Reservoir on 14 November. On 6 November the 3d US Infantry Division which was joining X Corps from Japan initiated relief of 1st Marine Division elements in the WONSAN area. This released the bulk of the 1st Marine Division for its drive to the border. On 21 November the 7th Infantry Division reached the YALU River this was the only Unit in X Corps to reach the border while I Republic of Korea Corps advancing Northeast completed the capture of the port of CHONGJIN on 25 November against the only organized resistance in the Corps zone Civil Affairs was making steady progress in organizing local and provincial governments United Nations Forces were enthusiastically received by the majority of the population In order to protect these governments it was necessary to employ a substantial number of troops Likewise the Military Supply Route s railroads and military installations required security against the depredations of many bands of by passed North Korean Army troops and guerrillas These guerrilla attacks while a problem were not considered critical and it was felt that as soon as the Corps Zone was cleared of organized resistance most of the guerrilla activity would cease The presence of Chinese Communist Forces in front of the 1st Marine Division was the imponderable in the Intelligence picture On 28 October the 26th Republic of Korea Regiment made the first contact with the Chinese Communist Forces in the area north of HAMHUNG The 7th Marine Regiment relieved the 26th Republic of Korea Regiment and by 14 November succeeded in defeating this Chinese Communist Forces covering force but there were few indications of their intentions and future plans By the middle of November the plans of X Corps became dependent on the plans for Eighth Army in the West and a change in the X Corps mission was indicated This change was made necessary by the enemy buildup in front of Eighth Army and the halting by enemy action of the first attempt in the second week of November to advance Eighth Army to the border Ebb and Flow: November 1950 - July 1951 Billy C.
