

The Importance of Freedom

Freedom means the power or right to act, speak or think as we want without restraint, and the absence of a despotic government. Freedom is very important because it stands for something greater than just the right to act; it also stands for securing everyone an equal opportunity for life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness. There are many types of freedom, here are three of them: freedom of speech, freedom of press and freedom of belief.

Freedom of speech is the right to speak our mind without fear that the government will censor or restrict what we have to say. In the article "Why is Freedom of Speech an Important Right? When, If Ever, Can it Be Limited" a student says "Freedom of speech is an important right because a person's voice is sometimes all that person has. To take away a person's thoughts and opinions is to diminish their values and strip their life away." (Gonchar)

Now, this is an important type of freedom because without it we would not be able to express our ideas as we want, we would not be able to share our thoughts as we need and we couldn't give our opinion of any subject or theme.

The freedom of press is the right that media has, to investigate or report news without being controlled by the government and to inform without restraint or censorship as guaranteed under the First Amendment to the U.S Constitution. The First Amendment protects free speech and free press in America.

Freedom of press is important because it plays a vital role informing residents about public affairs and monitoring the actions of government at all levels. Freedom of press also allows citizens the possibility of organizing and creating media independent from the government power, in which they have the right to express themselves freely without censorship. The co-founder and executive director of the Freedom of Press Foundation, Trevor Timm, says "Americans should feel 'incredibly lucky' to have the First Amendment enshrined in the nation's Constitution — 'hardly any other countries in the world have such a clause.'" (D'Arcy)

All informative media should be able to have freedom of press, because they are expressing their thoughts and informing, but they also should use this freedom in a respectful way, not getting into anyone's personal life and not using fake information about something or someone.

Now, let's talk about freedom of belief or freedom of religion. This freedom is u
