

Thomas Paine's Common Sense

Thomas Paine is one of the important founding fathers of America who with his powerful language won over the hearts of the Americans. Thus he united America to rebel against the greatest super power in the world at the time – England. Thomas Paine came to America from Britain at just the right time because he would see the condition of America and with the power of his words he would subdue the public in believing in his cause. He used propaganda to make the people see the horrors England was imposing on the Americans. He turned the public into believing him with one of the most famous works of the Age of Reason era Common Sense. People were won to the necessity for common sense that argued for separation.

The realization that this was necessary to improve the life of the lower class. Thomas Paine, when he called for separation said “Everything that is right or reasonable pleads for separation. The blood of the slain, the weeping voice of nature cries, ’tis time to part” (Paine, Common Sense). In Pennsylvania the common people seized control of the government, while greatly increasing their strength in the assemblies. These assemblies began telling their delegates in Congress to declare independence. Paine was a Deist who believed in God as a benevolent Creator who allowed the universe to operate by natural law. Paine argued that the New World was discovered shortly before the Reformation and the Puritans had believed that God wanted to give them a safe haven from the religious persecution they faced in Britain.

Deism was not popular until the Revolution when Paine said it was natural to throw off the rule of King George III, and declare their independence. Paine appeals to the public with his vast knowledge in Common Sense. In his pamphlet he emphasizes many points. First, Paine felt it was wrong for an island to rule a continent. He said America was not a “British nation” as it was composed of influences and peoples from all of Europe. Paine was a master mind who knew how to pull the strings when he says, Even if Britain was the “mother country” of America, Paine thought that made the actions of the British government against the colonists all the more wrong as no mother would harm her children in the way Britain was harming America. He made the Americans emotional because they were tired of getting taxed heavily from Britain.

He said Britain ruled the colonies for its own benefit, and did not consider the best interests of the colonists. This was because the taxes were increasing without the consent of America and the public was fed up with it. Thomas Paine was so well received in America was because not only did he talk but he also proved it by his actions. Paine joined the revolutionary forces convinced that “those who expect to reap the blessings of freedom must... undergo the fatigue of supporting it” (Paine 67). He would rally the troops and George Washington even had some of his quotes read to all the soldi
