By the Critical Theology Editorial Team

"Which side are you on?" In the wake of an illegal and violent invasion of her home in 1931 by deputies acting in the interests of a coal mining company, Florence Reece, the wife of a Kentucky coal mine strike organizer, penned the words to a song that asks the most important question for Christians today. With its tune taken from a Christian hymn, the song has been sung and rewritten dozens of times in dozens of conflicts. The chorus asks us to choose between the rich and poor, the powerful and the weak, those at the centre and those in the margins. Because the question has never been more urgent, we launch Critical Theology as a renewal of The Ecumenist, a journal that Gregory Baum founded in 1982.

Pope John Paul II was not afraid to take sides. When he visited Canada in the 1980s, he declared, "The needs of the poor take priority over the desires of the rich; the rights of workers over the maximization of profits; the preservation of the environment over uncontrolled industrial expansion; and production to meet social needs over production for military purposes." Similarly, in the face of dangers—long-standing and emerging—to the dignity and safety of human beings, Christians, along with members of the world's religions and all people of good will, need to make a decision. Neutrality, apathy, cynicism, and passivity are not options. Which side are we on?

Critical Theology is our reply to Florence Reece's heartfelt song. In this first issue, we have asked the members of the new editorial team to write a reflection on what critical theology means to them. You will find that, despite a shared commitment to the faith and justice perspective, each editor comes to this project from a different perspective. We welcome that diversity. Critical theology never imagines that it has

Religion within the Limits of History Alone Demian Wheeler, 2020-09-01 Among the greatest challenges facing religious thinkers today is that created by historicism the notion that human beings and their myriad understandings of reality are utterly historical conditioned by contingent circumstances and tied to particular contexts In this book Demian Wheeler confronts the historicist challenge by delineating and defending a particular trajectory of historicist thought known as pragmatic historicism Rooted in the German Enlightenment and fully developed within the early Chicago school of theology pragmatic historicism is a predominantly American tradition that was philosophically nurtured by classical pragmatism and its intellectual siblings naturalism and radical empiricism Religion within the Limits of History Alone not only undertakes a detailed genealogy of this pragmatic historicist lineage but also sets forth a constructive program for contemporary theology by charting a path for its future development Wheeler shows that pragmatic historicism is an underdeveloped resource for contemporary theology since it offers a model for normative religious thought that is theologically compelling yet wholly nonsupernaturalistic deeply pluralistic unflinchingly liberal and radically historicist

Protestant Scholasticism: Essays in Reassessment Carl R. Trueman, Scott R. Clark, 2007-10-01 Traditionally Protestant theology between Luther's early reforming career and the dawn of the Enlightenment has been seen in terms of decline and fall into the wastelands of rationalism and scholastic speculation In this volume a number of scholars question such an interpretation The editors argue that the development of Post Reformation Protestantism can only be understood when a proper historical model of doctrinal change is adopted This historical concern underlies the subsequent studies of theologians such as Calvin Beza Olevian Baxter and the two Turrentini The result is a significantly different reading of the development of Protestant Orthodoxy one which both challenges the older scholarly interpretations and clichés about the relationship of Protestantism to among other things scholasticism and rationalism and which demonstrates the fruitfulness of the new historical approach Contributors D V N Bagchi David C Steinmetz Richard A Muller Frank A James III John L Farthing Lyle D Bierma R Scott Clark Donald Sinnema Paul R Schaefer W Robert Godfrey Carl R Trueman Philip G Ryken John E Platt Joel R Beeke James T Dennison Jr Martin I Klauber Lowell C Green and David P Scaer
